And then the fem friend wanted to talk to me about the dance and the Big Apple and no lemons. Say, I've been truckin' ever since I was twelve years old, but it was peddlin' papers to make a living. I thought I had learned to dance until I stepped on my partner's toes. That's the best test, but it's tough on the partner. However, you get a positive answer. When I was a kid if we were able to do a tap dance we just picked it up and we were something unusual. Now the kiddies are able to lay 'em down and pick 'em up with such skill that I've tried to forget that I ever did any tap dancing.

FDR Urges Price Boosts

'Moderate' Raise For Commodities Asked at Parley

WASHINGTON. (AP)—President Roosevelt said today "a moderate rise in the general price level is desirable," but he made it clear that he does not believe all prices should go up. Answering a multitude of questions aroused by his recent assertion that prices were too low, Mr. Roosevelt read to his press conference a statement of administration policy as set out by the secretaries of agriculture, labor and the treasury and by the federal reserve chairman. Subsequently he brought out that the maintenance of easy credit conditions was a part of the general program and that the treasury and federal reserve board would cooperate to that end.

"Our program," this statement said, "seeks a balanced system of prices such as will promote a balanced expansion in production. Our goal is a constantly increasing national income through increasing production and employment. This is the way to increase the real income of the consumers."

Saying the price increase "need not and should not extend to all prices," the statement continued that it should be confined to commodities such as raw materials and finished products "sold under highly competitive condition" and whose prices are presently "too low."

After reading the statement, Mr. Roosevelt picked up a schoolroom pointer and went over with the assembled reporters, possibly 200 of them in all, four charts tracing the relation between prices and unemployment and prices and farm products and showing a wide variance in prices of related commodities.

Joking now and then with reporters, the President explained he had expected some questions would be asked and he had at-

WRIGHT WAITS ONE 'HURDLE'

LOS ANGELES. (AP)—One hurdle still barred the road to freedom today for Paul A. Wright, "unconscious" slayer of his wife and friend, John Kimmel.

Four alienists are to examine him at the county psychopathic ward and report at a lunacy commission hearing on Monday whether he is sane.

Convicted on two manslaughter counts last Saturday, the aviation executive was saved from a possible 20-year prison term when the same jury decided Wednesday that he was temporarily insane at the time of the double killing last Nov. 9.

Bowl Grid Tickets To Get New Deal

PASADENA. (AP)—A new deal in distribution of Rose Bowl football tickets to insure a supply for public sale was promised today with the election of three new directors by the tournament of roses association.

George S. Campbell, president of the association, referred in his annual report to criticism over allotment of tickets for last New Year's day game by which all available seats were reserved for students and alumni of the University of California, the western contestant.

700-Year-Old Tomb Reveals Bodies of Infant Royalty

LONDON. (AP) — A marble tomb in Westminster Abbey containing the bodies of an infant prince and princess has been opened 700 years after their burial, Abbey officials disclosed today.

It was the tomb of Mary and Humphrey Bohun, infant grandchildren of Edward I. Seals on an urn containing their bones were broken in order to "reveal the very beautiful 14th century carving," said the keeper.

"The carving on the urn is almost perfect," he said. "Visitors to the Abbey can now walk around the tomb and examine a specimen of Elizabethian craftsmanship which had been concealed for centuries."

AIR ARMADA ENDS HOP IN ARGENTINA

Crowd Welcomes Good-Will Flyers

BUENOS AIRES. (AP)—A squadron of five huge bombers of the United States army roared over Buenos Aires at 11:08 a. m., Eastern standard time, today at the end of a 5000-mile good-will flight from Miama, Fla.

The planes approached El Palomar military air base with their 20 motors—four on each of the "flying fortresses" — performing excellently. They had come from the United States with only one stop, at Lima, Peru.

They completed the 2500-mile Lima-Buenos Aires leg in a little more than 12 hours. The first plane swept down to a graceful landing on El Palomar field one minute after the squadron flew over the city.

A crowd of eager sightseers and official representatives of the United States and Argentina were at the field to greet the fliers. The fliers came to take part in inauguration ceremonies Sunday for President-elect Roberto M. Ortiz.

The sixth plane of the original squadron which yesterday flew non-stop from Miami, Fla., to Lima, Peru — 2695 miles in 15 hours and 40 minutes—was following the others from the Peruvian capital.

It had been held up at Lima by propellor trouble. Adjustments were quickly made, however, and Major J. V. Meloy, its commander, was able to take off at 6:20 a. m., seven hours and 20 minutes after departure of the other five.

The six ships carried 49 men and the flight from Miami was the longest non-stop flight ever made by the United States army air corps.

BUTTER FAT RATE WAITED

Milk distributors in Orange county are awaiting word from A. A. Brock, state agricultural director, as to whether they will be permitted to purchase butter fat in the future at the rate of 69 cents a pound.

The present charge is 72 cents and a hearing conducted locally this week at the courthouse might possibly result in a change. One of Brock's deputies took testimony in regard to this and will present the facts to his superior who will set the price within the next thirty days. The rate in Los Angeles county is 69 cents.

It is expected Director Brock will appear personally in Orange county next month to conduct hearings relative to setting the price on milk sold retail and wholesale throughout the county.

SCORES HURT IN OIL FIELD TRAGEDY

Sudden Wind Strikes Boom Community

RODESSA, La. —A crackling, roaring tornado that dipped into the industrial section of this north Louisiana oil boom town last night brought death to at least 22 persons, injured three score and caused damage variously estimated between $250,000 and $400,000.

An accurate check of the dead and injured had to await the restoration of order here and reports from Shreveport, Vivian, La., and Atlanta, Tex., where many of the victims were taken.

Ten bodies were counted in morgues at Atlanta. Six others lay in Shreveport and others in improvised morgues.

Drs. George E. Morrison and Charles Holt, who directed treatment of the injured here, agreed the death list might run between 20 and 25 and the injured above 60. Together they treated more than a score in their offices, eight of whom died.

MANY INJURED

Drs. Morrison and Holt said many of the injured were in a critical condition.

The storm struck at 9:42 p. m. The hands of a big electric clock in the path of the twister stopped at that time. It blew in from the north and roared like a freight train, witnesses said.

For two minutes it swirled along Supply street, leveling practically every structure in a block and a half square area. Small frame houses collapsed like cracker boxes, tumbling in on their occupants. Larger business houses swayed and fell under the terrific blow, filling the air with huge slinters, tree limbs and other debris.

POWER FAILS

The power system failed, throwing the town into darkness and adding to the confusion.

MERRIAM GETS G. O. P. OKAY

The California Republicans, state-wide political organization, today heard the big drums beat vigorously for Gov. Frank Merriam in his campaign for re-election.

Speakers at a rally in the Hayward hotel, Los Angeles, were Assemblyman E. V. Latham, Southern California campaign manager for the governor, and Justus F. Craemer of Orange, Republican state chairman, and Orange newspaper publisher.

"What we need these days," said Craemer, "is less color and more horse sense in government. To paraphrase the words of Abraham Lincoln, "the nation cannot survive half regimented and half free."

"Under the Merriam administration," Latham said, "the state's credit is sound, its warrants are at a premium, it has one of the lowest tax rates in the nation, its schools remain open, and business, agriculture, labor and the home owner have been protected."

Kindly Voice Tells Crime Yarn

Defeated for sheriff in 1934 and a potent threat to enter the race again this year, "Capt." Don Wilkie of Laguna Beach returned to the air last night.

Wilkie's kindly voice, heard over KFI, told the story of "Machine Gun" Kelly's capture, interspersed with requests to send for his free booklet on a fingerprinting course he is advertising. His last sponsor was a cigaret without nicotine.

Wilkie, son of the late John Wilkie, chief of the U. S. secret service, was nosed out by Logan Jackson in the 1934 sheriff's race after a spirited campaign. He has indicated he probably will run again this year — especially if Jackson tries for re-election again.

Fireman Injured In Vain Try to Extricate Victim

Last lines of a tragedy which took the life of a young father and nearly ended another life yesterday afternoon were written by workmen at the Sunny Hills ranch in Fullerton today as they carefully fitted some wooden planks over the mouth of a musty 23-inch hole. Albert Scott, 21-year-old Placentia youth, died in the bottom of that hole, 82 feet below the surface, and Laurence E. Jones, Fullerton fireman, twice was overcome when he lowered himself into the treacherous shaft in an attempt to rescue Scott.

The dramatic tragedy, which lasted from 1:35 p. m. until after 5 o'clock when Scott's body finally was recovered, began when a small piece of quarter-inch pipe fell into the shaft of a water well.

On an improvised rope stirrup, Scott lowered himself into the well to retrieve the pipe. Half way down he apparently was overcome by lack of oxygen, lost his grip on the rope and slumped to the bottom of the shaft.

Two fellow workmen—Tom Kwasigrosch and Will Stidham—saw what had happened and quickly summoned the Fullerton fire department.

Jones, who might have saved Scott if he'd been able to reach him immediately, was overcome less than 30 feet from the surface and other members of the rescue squad pulled him back to the top of the shaft. He donned a gas-mask, went back into the hole and passed out again at the 50-foot level.

All hope of recovering Scott before he died had been lost by then and grappling hooks were used to bring up the limp body.

Scott, an employe at the Sunny Hills ranch for the past two years, leaves a young wife, Velma, and a nine-month-old child residing at the Snell apartments in Placentia. He also is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ben F. Scott of Placentia, seven brothers and four sisters.

Investigating officers expressed the opinion that Scott died of suffocation and not as a result of the fall. They did not believe gas had accumulated in the well casing, but indicated it probably was a "dead space" and did not provide sufficient oxygen for breathing.

Coroner Earl Abbey said today an inquest is pending in McAulay and Suters funeral parlor at Fullerton.

Employes at the ranch, officials reported, had gone to the bottom of the well a year ago with no untoward consequences, and some investigators believed a neutral gas may have collected to replace air in the hole since then. The well casing is 23 inches in diameter for the first 82 feet, then it reportedly tapers down to a 9½-inch shaft.

RICHARDSON, WATER HEAD, DROPS DEAD

Orange Official, 66, Funeral Set Monday

William James Richardson, 66, for the past quarter of a century water superintendent at Orange, dropped dead from a heart attack at 10:30 last night in his home at 176 Batavia street, Orange.

Mr. Richardson, who had been considered in good health by the many persons who knew him, complained of "not feeling so good" yesterday evening shortly before he died. He had been about town yesterday, and last Wednesday evening appeared before members of the council.

INVALUABLE SERVICE

Born at Somersetshire, England, Mr. Richardson moved to the United States about 1907, taking up residence at Burman, Pa. Two years later he came to Orange where he has since lived.

City councilmen at Orange contacted today praised Richardson as having been invaluable to them in conducting the city water department.

Mr. Richardson held membership in the following organizations of which he was a prominent member: The Presbyterian church, the Orange Grove lodge No. 293, the Masonic lodge and the Orange County Engineers club.

FUNERAL SERVICES

Funeral services will be conducted next Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Presbyterian church in Orange with Dr. Robert Burns McAulay officiating. Interment will be at Serrahaven cemetery. The Gillogly funeral home is in charge of arrangements.

He leaves his widow, Mrs. Anna Marie; two sons, John W. of Oakland and James E. of Orange; one daughter, Mrs. W. H. Price of San Mateo; four sisters, Mrs. Martha Feather of Orange, Mrs. Anna Cox of England, Mrs. James Cawthra of Anaheim, Mrs. Emma Woodhead of Massachusetts; two brothers, Thomas of Orange and John of Oceanside; and three grandchildren.

Justice Accused Of Conspiracy

Justice Cal Lester of Oarnge was accused today of conspiring to remove Mayor A. C. Boice, of attempting to control city government, and of openly stating he "would send Boice to jail." Boice made the charges today in an affidavit of bias and prejudice filed against Justice Lester, in an attempt to remove the veteran Orange judge from the bench in Boice's petty theft trial, scheduled for next Wednesday.

Boice, arrested last week on charges of taking city gasoline illegally, retorted the complaint was merely another effort by Councilman J. E. Riley to seize control of government again, after Boice's election had removed Dr. Riley as "boss."

The affidavit demanded that Lester disqualify himself and obtain another justice to preside at Boice's trial. It was filed by A. P. Nelson, attorney for the mayor.

It alleged that: Justice Lester is a longtime political enemy of the mayor's; he, with Dr. Riley, long controlled the city government, the control being broken by Boice's election to the council; the judge has repeatedly tried to get the mayor to resign; he "tipped off" the newspapers before the complaint was filed, and said afterward, "he would send affiant to jail;" Riley offered a dismissal if Boice would resign as mayor.

Boice, Townsend-elected, has been at loggerheads with Dr. Riley in city business, and claims Riley wants to seize control of city government again.

Costa Mesa Youth Reported Missing

Disappearance of John McCormick, 17-year-old Costa Mesa youth was reported today by his brother, James McCormick. The boy was last seen at First and Main streets in Santa Ana early this week after an argument between himself and his brother's wife, the sheriff's office was informed.

Girl, 19, Acquitted In 'Puddle' Death

Anaheim Collector Pleads to Charge

Charged with theft of approximately $10 from Frank C. Snyder, 126 South West street, Anaheim, in connection with collections on sales of mineral water, H. C. Hamilton pleaded guilty before Justice of the Peace Kenneth E. Morrison this morning.

Pronouncement of judgment on the petty theft charge was set for 1:30 p. m. Monday. Snyder charged Hamilton sold some mineral water, then failed to turn in his collections on four separate occasions.

County Urged to Housing Action

A resolution urging the board of supervisors to take immediate steps to put Orange county in condition to benefit under the Wagner-Steagall housing act was unanimously adopted at a mass meeting of the county's General Welfare units in the Unitarian church last night.

More than 200 members of the welfare groups turned out for the meeting and commissioned Herbert F. Kenny to present the resolution to the supervisors next week.

Before the county can bnefit from provisions of the housing act, it was pointed out, each county must appoint a housing authority and take other enabling steps.

Supervisor Steele Finley attended last night's mass meeting, but he made no comment on the resolution.

The Rev. Rex B. Barr of Long Beach, former Townsend manager for the 18th congressional district, was speaker of the evening, and Frank Kendall, president of the Santa Ana General Welfare center, conducted the meeting. Members were present from the Anaheim, Fullerton, Costa Mesa and Yorba Linda centers.

England May Step Into Central Europe Nazi Move

HITLER MOVE WATCHED BY STATESMEN

(By the Associated Press)

Nazified Austria rumbled with opposition. Great Britain hinted she would not watch idly the Hitlerization of central Europe. But Germany went ahead today to extend her domination of Austria.

In Austria there was talk of raising barricades. Diverse groups, all fearful of National Socialist plans, found common ground in anti-Naziism.

Monarchists, their hope of empire glimmering, met to formulate an agreement with Socialists, or reconcilable enemies of Nazidom. The Fatherland Front, Austria's only legal political party, cried out for a voice in Austria's destinies and was rebuffed by Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg. The tough sturmkorps, anti-Nazi troopers, were aroused.

Catholics feared Nazi influence was a blow to them. Jews were alarmed. Finance feared a flight of capital. Industrialists feared intensified business with Germany might drain Austria of valuable imported raw materials.

These fears were fed by authoritative German reports that Reichsfuehrer Hitler was determined to accomplish economic union between Germany and Austria. A customs union was taken for granted.

They were fed by reports Germany's Field Marshal Gen. Hermann Wilhelm Goering, chief aide to Hitler and head of Germany's four-year economic plan, soon would go to Vienna to meet Austrian government and industrial leaders.

They were fed by the visit of Interior Minister Arthur Seysz-Inquart to Hitler the day after Seysz-Inquart and four other Nazi sympathizers entered Austria's traditionally anti-Nazi cabinet. He telephoned from Berlin last night that he was assured of German Nazi backing as "Fuehrer" of Austrian Nazidom.

Britain's leaders had what was considered a "show down" talk with Count Dino Grandi, Italian ambassador to London, on the role of Italy in the Austrian crisis. British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden earlier had promised the government would continue to interest itself in Austria "in relation to Central Europe as a whole."

London diplomatic circles expressed belief Italy had demanded, and received, promises of a military alliance for acquiescing in Hitler's virtual suppression of Austrian independence.

KUGLER DEATH ACCIDENTAL

Injuries which killed John Kugler, 45, Sunset hotel, Pomona, more than a month after they were inflicted, were the result of an accident, a coroner's jury decided yesterday.

CIO Status Waited By Walnut Growers

The CIO charges the Growers' association with illegally maintaining a company union.

cisco, decrying the disturbing habit of Republicans running on Democratic tickets, was visiting old friends in the county—all Republicans.

Earl Warren, Republican district attorney of Alameda county, announced he would desert all party lines and run for the G. O. P., Bourbon and Progressive nominations at once.

"Our primary law," warned Brennan, the Democrat, "permits a Republican who is out of sympathy with all Democratic principles to appear on the Democratic ballot at the primaries as a Democrat, thus confusing all the Democrats."

In the same breath Brennan said:

"I hope my old friends in Orange county, with whom I went to Stanford, will be 'big' enough to give me their votes despite their Republican affiliation." (He was thought to be referring to County Treasurer T. E. Stephenson and the Brothers McFadden.)

Warren, doing nothing to detract from the utter confusion surrounding the situation, said:

"The office is non-partisan in character and I shall file for all three nominations, first resigning my position as Republican national committeeman. If elected I will perform my duties in an impartial manner."

TORNADO KILLS 22 IN SOUTH

snapped, crackled and dangled dangerously throughout the area. Oil derricks toppled. One fell across a highway, blocking traffic. Another, uprooted and carried from the well, permitted oil to blow wild.

Eddie Hill, 20-year-old oil field workers, said the tornado "sounded like a huge freight train rumbling through the town."

He was sitting with his wife in their hotel room discussing the storm when they heard a "terrific roar." They rushed into the street.

"There was plenty of confusion," he said. "People were running about wildly and some asked what had happened. They seemed stunned." Dead and injured were lying in the street and in the wreckage.

"It was like a terrible nightmare," Hill related.

Volunteers rushed to the stricken area carrying lanterns, flashlights and torches. They dug into the wreckage blindly, guided in some instances by the cries of those trapped under the demolished houses.

Trucks from the oil fields were rushed in and quickly converted into ambulances. Some were used to drag portions of fallen walls and heavy timbers from the victims.

Within less than 30 minutes after the storm hit aid arrived from Shreveport, Vivian and Atlanta. Lack of facilities here prompted the transfer of the dead and injured to the neighboring towns.

Louisiana and Arkansas highway police converged on the area and kept the highway open for the passage of the injured-laden trucks.

Gov. Richard W. Leche acted quickly at Baton Rouge to dispatch state aid. He ordered Adj. Gen. Raymond Fleming to Rodessa to take care of the relief and rehabilitation work, and sent word to Gen. Louis F. Guerre, head of the state police, to move every available man.

The tornado apparently singled out this oil boom town for its earthward descent, as no other storms were reported within a wide area.

Rodessa is an unincorporated town which sprang up three or four years ago in connection with the discovery of the vast Rodessa oil field, which extends through northwest Louisiana and northeast Texas.

Its population was estimated at approximately 2000. The town is 42 miles northwest of Shreveport, in the tip of Caddo parish, where the Arkansas, Texas and Louisiana state lines converge.

DAMAGE ESTIMATED AT $250,000 FOR TOWN

ATLANTA, Tex. (AP)—A downpour was hampering relief activities in the Rodessa, La., area early today after a tornado had left death and destruction in its wake.

Gordon McLendon, Atlanta newspaperman, estimated the damage at $250,000 after a hasty survey of the stricken oil town.

To add to the fears and confusion, McLendon said, there were reports that there was danger of a natural gas explosion. A gas main had been twisted asunder and a vapor hung over the lowlands.

tempted to anticipate them and prepare answers. He then went over the subject in question and answer fashion for several minutes. Afterward, Mr. Roosevelt settled back in his chair and replied to scores of inquiries from reporters.

The President pictured a balanced price structure as an aid to recovery and therefore a benefit to the average family.

OFFSET INCREASE

"Increased employment and more continuous income should more than offset any increase in the cost of living," he read from the statement.

He said examples of steps already taken toward recovery and a better balance of prices were the new farm act, the new housing construction program and the added $250,000,000 for relief. He added all these elements would help.

Does the program mean inflation? The President asked himself, and replied with a flat "no."

GOLD ACT AIDS

He added the virtual abandonment of gold sterilization was part of the plan to help restore a balanced price structure.

The committee report, which he termed noteworthy in that all the officials and experts had agreed on it, declared the price rise "should take place in and must be mainly confined to classes of commodities whose prices are too low."

"These include," the report said, "most of those raw materials and finished products which are produced and sold under highly competitive conditions. Such rise must not be so sharp, or continue so long, as to lead to a repetition of the unhealthy speculative conditions of a year ago.

RECESSION CAUSE

"That sharp rise in prices encouraged speculative inventory buying which, combined with the decline in housing construction, laid much of the ground for the present recession. We must do everything we can to prevent this from happening again.

"Our program seeks a balanced system of prices such as will promote a balanced expansion in production. Our goal is a constantly increasing national income through increasing production and employment. This is the way to increase the real income of consumers."

Declaring the administration's program was not a policy of restriction but was one of abundance, the report said:

"Our agricultural, industrial, housing and monetary programs have been and will be directed toward this end."

Those attending the meeting are reported finally to have voted to ask Matt Voykovic, service station operator, to run for a seat on the turbulent city board.

Four positions will be vacated on the council this spring, with terms of Mayor Dan Mulherron, David I. Stoddard, Capital company head; former Mayor Henry Fate and Smith coming to an end. Miss Lillian V. Coe has the only holdover seat on the board.

Smith, former political leader in the Spanish Village, was "highbrowed" by the council in committee appointments, receiving not a single position on important governmental committees. His reported announcement that he will not run again came as a shock to supporters in the San Clemente area.

The only candidate to file for office thus far is William H. Stute, riding academy operator.

Joint Tenancy Terminated

Joint tenancy of the late Emma Miller in a $54,000 estate was terminated today by Superior Judge G. K. Scovel, and the property set over to the widower, Otto Miller. The estate, totaling $54,563.79 in an inventory filed by Inheritance Tax Appraiser Howard Irwin, consists of 17 parcels of real estate in Fullerton and four notes totaling $15,015.79.

County Moves to Recover Age Pensions

CHILDREN'S EARNINGS PROMPT TEST

First of 20 Suits Readied for Trial

An early court test of state law providing for suits against sons and daughters whose parents get old-age pensions loomed here today as four defendants had on file an answer to a $350 suit brought against them by the county.

The answer was the first contest proceeding in more than 20 similar cases filed recently by Deputy Dist. Atty. J. E. Walker under new legislation providing for recovery of pensions paid when adult children are found to have enough property or salary to support their parents.

Walker said today he hoped for an early trial date on the present case to test validity of the suits.

Defendants whose answer was on file today are Jack, Perry and Dewey Callaham and Nellie C. McInteer, sons and daughter of Charles I. and Katie Callaham, who assertedly had been paid $350 in pension funds by the county.

Their first duty, the answer said, is to their respective families. They added they were willing to help support their parents if they were able to, but denied they had enough funds to care for their parents after their immediate families were supported.

Jack Callaham denied he owned property worth $15,000, as alleged in the complaint, and said his holdings were worth less than $5000. Dewey Callaham denied he owned $5000 worth of property, as alleged, and said he has four children to support.

The others also entered general denials of allegations in the complaint. The original action charged Jack Callaham owned $15,000 worth of property and made $250 a month as a flooring contractor; that Perry Callaham was paid $150 a month as flooring company; that Dewey Callaham owned $5000 worth of property and made $200 a month in flooring work; and that Mrs. McInteer made $80 a month as a bookkeeper while being supported by her husband. The answer was filed by Harry C. Westover, attorney for the defendants.

MWD TO MOVE TRANSFORMERS

INDIO. (AP)—Giant transformers weighing as much as 65 tons and requiring the use of special underslung flat cars to haul are now arriving at desert sidings for installation in pumping plants on the 392-mile Metropolitan aqueduct.

The transformers are being used to "step down" electrical energy delivered over a 237-mile transmission line to the five aqueduct pumping plants.

Designed to lift adqeduct water a total height of 1600 feet, the five pumping plants constitute one of the largest pumping installations in the nation.

Now in its sixth year of construction, the 392-mile aqueduct will carry a billion gallons of water a day from the Colorado river to the 13 Southern California cities in the Metropolitan Water district.

Chairman

Harry S. Pickard (above), chairman of the citizens' committee in charge of the tenth annual Military ball, said today everything was in readiness for the affair, to be held next Monday night in Valencia ballroom.

One of the most successful events of its kind was predicted for the tenth annual Military ball Monday night by Chairman Harry S. Pickard today.

Everything is in readiness, Pickard said following the final meeting of the citizens' committee in charge of the affair. Proceeds will go into the welfare and rehabilitation funds of Jack Fisher chapter, Disabled American Veterans of the World War.

"Importance of the ball," Pickard said, "is becoming greater each year. The funds derived enable the host organization to care for the needs of disabled veterans and their families throughout the county. As each year passes more and more of the men holding service connection from the Veterans' administration fall into the unemployable group as a result of their disabilities becoming more acute."

The DAV today expressed its appreciation to the many citizens who have served on the dance committee, many of whom had served since 1928, when the first was presented. Appreciation of the public response also was expressed.

Billy McDonald and his Royal Highlanders will play for the affair, slated to get under way at 9 p. m. Monday in Valencia ballroom.

FIREWORKS CONTROL LAW FORMULATED

Plans to introduce a county-wide law for control of sales of fireworks were formulated at a meeting of the Orange County Fire Chiefs' association last night in Buena Park.

Frank Crocker, Newport Beach fire chief, will appear before the County League of Municipalities at its next meeting to ask cooperation in a uniform law over the county, banning so-called "flash" crackers, which the fire chiefs said are extremely dangerous, especially to children.

Fireworks salesmen say a standard fireworks law is acceptable to them, so long as it is not prohibitory, Crocker said, in explaining the move to protect children from burns and lost fingers due to the extremely explosive type of crackers.

Similar standard ordinances are being prepared for Los Angeles and San Diego counties, it was reported.

Chief Roy Davis of Fullerton, president of the fire fighters, led in a discussion of problems encountered in emergency first aid work and oxygen treatment. Insurance underwriting methods and fire losses were other topics of discussion. Chief J. K. Sargent of Huntington Beach is vice president and Percy Owens of Buena Park is secretary of the organization.

AUTO AFIRE

Rise and Fall of a Fighter

By DALE CARNEGIE

A few years ago I went to Madison Square Garden to see Primo Carnera fight. He was the man of the hour; rich, famous, sought after. He climbed from the very bottom to the top, for he had been a poor Italian boy who could read and write only with the greatest difficulty.

Dale Carnegie

As I write this, his big form is lying on two beds in a hospital in Budapest, and he is broke. He still clings to a silk dressing-gown, almost the sole souvenir of his wealth and fame.

"When I was making money I never thought I would come to this," he said sadly. "It came easy and I spent it as it came."

How true that is! I beg you to save. No one knows what tomorrow will bring. Ziegfeld, who made millions as the great glorifier of the American girl, died in debt. General John A. Sutter, who discovered gold in California, and precipitated the greatest money rush the world has ever known, died in a miserable furnished room with hardly a dollar to his name.

Again I beg you—save. Prepare for tomorrow.

GOOD LISTENER

The secret of influencing people lies not so much in being a good talker as in being a good listener. And oh! how rare is a good listener.

I have never seen this point better illustrated than in a book called "Tested Sentences That Sell," by Elmer Wheeler. (Prentice-Hall.) The book, by the way, is dedicated to one of the finest salesmen in America, Professor Richard C. Borden.

"A good listener bends toward you physically," the book says; "he leans on you mentally with every word that you utter. He is 'with you' every moment, nodding and smiling at the right times. He listens a 'little closer.'

"One way for a salesman to raise his selling average is to 'listen a little closer.' It is a sound rule to follow for social and business success."

Begin to practice this. Listen a "little closer" and see if the other fellow doesn't think you are a fine conversationalist!

HISTORY OF CORNFLAKES

Recently my speaking tour included Battle Creek, Mich. While there, I visited the famous sanitarium conducted by Dr. John Harvey Kellogg. Dr. Keliogg told me that he once had a dream that was worth five million dollars. He dreamed how to make cornflakes. When he awoke from his dream he straightway went about making cornflakes, and he eventually sold his patent for this product for the sum of five million dollars.

I told this story to a porter on a Pullman car the other day, and asked him if he had ever had a dream worth a million dollars. He replied: "No, suh, I never had a dream that was worth a dime."

Sanctuaries Urged For 'Little Game'

ORONO, Me. — "Little game sanctuaries" for insects and birds may bet necessary in the future in the United States, Dr. Edith M. Patch of the University of Maine predicts. Dr. Patch is president of the Entomological society of America.

While mankind is now trying to destroy some species of insects, he is also succeeded in killing off many harmless insects and insects that do good, Dr. Patch points out. Sanctuary where students may swing collecting nets and birds obtain food may have to be provided before the year 2000, the entomologist believes.

Three Cars Tangle, Occupants Escape

Three cars tangled in front of 1429 South Main street last night, but all participants escaped injury.

Cars owned by E. W. Heffner, 715 Lacy street; Ellia Burrow, 819 West Second street, and Scott Cunningham, 813 West Pine street, were involved in the collision.

Fire trucks stood by to guard against fire threatened when gasoline spilled from one car's tank.

REVOLT EXPECTED

SAN SALVADOR. — Plans for future revolts are being made by the government here. All military barracks are to be moved outside the city so innocent bystanders will not be killed or injured and private property destroyed during attacks.

Four Men Escape As Plane Crashes

LOS ANGELES. (AP)—Four men were recovering from cuts and bruises today as the result of a forced landing made by a new four-place cabin monoplane in a muddy field near Century and Crenshaw boulevards.

The plans was piloted by Elmer A. Riley, 30. In the plane were his brother, Russell E. Riley of Bakersfield, Cal., owner of the plane; Dale Stanley, a mechanic at a Los Angeles airport, and Victor Pesek, a friend of the owner.

None of the plane's occupants was injured seriously.

PASS FOUND TO SUPPLANT VALLEY ROAD

EL CENTRO. (AP)—Word that a much more desirable pass has been found through the Chuckwalla mountains on the International Four States highway route between Niland and Palo Verde valley, comes from Robert Hays, local Chamber of Commerce secretary.

Hays says the newly discovered route will, he believes, be the one eventually chosen for the direct road from Imperial valley to Boulder dam and Nevada, Idaho, Montana and Canada.

This pass was examined by R. G. Elmore, foreman of the county road district No. 4, at the suggestion of Ed E. Wallace, highway engineer, both of whom led a reconnaisance party through the Chuckwalla range.

LOWER PASS EXISTS

Wallace, from a study of maps supplied by the Los Angeles Metropolitan water district, concluded a lower pass existed, in a more open terrain and that the route would not be materially lengthened by its use.

Elmore later made several trips to this area and reported the pass recommended by Wallace saved 400 feet in elevation and would be in a more open country; instead of the narrow gorges of other passes at Chuckwalla Wells and Chuckwalla Springs.

ONE OF PROBLEMS

This discovery, proponents say, should make construction of a preliminary road to a connection with highway U. S. 60, west of Blythe, a much simpler matter. The gap between Niland and U. S. 60, is one of the three only "problems" remaining to be solved.

Their solution would mean the completion and paving of the Four States highway, from the Canadian boundary line to the Mexican border, the other two gaps are in Idaho and Nevada, and are 16 and 32 miles, respectively, in length.

Highway directors mean to close them speedily.

125 PICKETS HURT--CLAIM

WASHINGTON. (AP) — Joseph Curran, president of the national maritime union, charged to the rival International Longshoremen's union today a share of responsibility for the deaths of 17 members of his union.

Appearing before the senate commerce and labor committees, Curran accused Joseph P. Ryan, president of the rival A. F. of L. union, "and his subordinates" with participation in the waterfront strife which, Curran said, led to the 17 deaths.

Curran testified 125 members of his CIO union had been injured in picketing activities since the organization first was formed.

Boys Politer Than Girls, Survey Shows

NEW YORK.—Boys are usually more polite than girls, according to a questionnaire survey just conducted among New York City schools by the Union Inspectors' club, which is directed by the WPA. The survey also indicated that children from tenement districts are more courteous than those from fashionable apartment house districts.

Chinese children were found the most polite, with Italian, French, Japanese, Irish and American children following in that order. Brooklyn children made the best showing.

Tipping of hats was ruled out as unnecessary in a crowded city by a large number of the boys. A few children approved of the "Bronx cheer" as a legitimate expression of criticism. Most of the children voted against shoving in subways, but one girl wrote that "it is the only way to get anywhere." The survey was conducted among all children between the ages of 6 and 10.

Seek Identity Of Slain Woman

LOS ANGELES. (AP)—The identity of a well-dressed, middle-aged women whose body was found in an apartment here was sought today by police.

The woman, who left a note saying "there is no one that cares if I am living or dead," registered at the apartment last Friday, giving the name of Mrs. E. B. Parkinson. Three small vials which are believed to have contained poison were found in the room.

Mrs. W. C. Marton, manager of the apartment house, stated the woman told her she came from San Diego. Her coat carried the label of a San Diego store, and a San Diego street car ticket was found in the apartment.

Hope for Blood Clot Elimination

TORONTO, Canada.—Danger of blood clot after serious operations may be eliminated by development of a new anti-blood clot substance, according to a report by Drs. D. W. Murray and C. H. Best of the University of Toronto faculty of medicine. They have prepared liver extract that can be administered to humans without fear of poisoning, they stated.

Over 200 patients at the university hospital have been given the anti-blood clot substance, but it will be necessary to give it to many times that number before being certain of its value, Dr. Murray declared.

Ice-Fishing Season for Smelt Booms Back East

Lake Champlain—where the waters run deep—in Little Old New York a good season is reported. Benson has improvised windshields to prevent water in the fishing hole from freezing on below-zero nights which visit this section of the country frequently in January and early February.

Lathrop School News

All those looking for an evening of real comedy and excitement should see Lathrop's hit of the season, "The Count and the Co-Ed," which will be given at the high school auditorium Friday evening of this week. This is the climax in live, colorful, humorous operettas and the cast promises to be top notch. Another noteworthy feature which should be mentioned to Santa Ana audiences is the fact that Miss Edith Cornell is the director. She is assisted by Mrs. Maxine Bryte and Mr. Stover of the Lathrop music department and an unusually well selected cast from the various glee clubs as well as the entire glee clubs.

The cast is as follows: Birdie Boggs played by Beverly Short, Amy Arnold by Betty Haynes, Miss Agatha Locksteep by Nanette Hubbard; Marjorie Blackwood by Charmeon Carlson, Willie (Sleepy) by James Carlisle, Dolly McSpadden by Mary McDougal, Mrs. McSpadden by June Trusty, Mark Watson by Rodney Helland, Dr. McSpadden by Marvin Mendenhall, Hamilton by Robert Greenwald, Snooze Andrews by Ben Pannell.

Mrs. Grace Wolff's seventh grade home room elected the following officers to serve this semester: President, Sterling Gordon; vice president, Ethel Mae Hazen; secretary, Virginia Hatfield; reporter, Francis Gibson; sergeant-at-arms, George Gottleib; Athletic manager, Mike Garcia; program committee, Christine Hansen and Betty Herrin.

BOYS' ASSEMBLY

At a special boys' assembly on Monday the meeting was called to order by the I. X. L. president, Warren Danielson. The minutes of previous meeting were read by the secretary, Jim Kanno, and approved. Bill Gulley and Kenneth Crumley, speaking on "Sportsmanship" and "Good Citizenship" respectively, gave sincere and excellent addresses, which were enthusiastically received. Mr. Archer spoke briefly on the athletic outlook for the new semester.

NEW MEMBERS

Twenty-four new members have recently been voted into the Junior Literary Club. The requirements for membership are: The approval of each subject teacher and the reading and listing of ten good non-fiction and fiction books within the past four months. At the regular meeting fourth period last Friday two students from Mrs. Hill's public speaking class were guest speakers. Eleanor Stevenson in a natural and impressive way told "The Gift of the Magi" by O. Henry. Don Betz held the audience tense as he reviewed Poe's "The Gold Bug."

LINCOLN PROGRAM

On Feb. 11 the seventh graders in Miss Bernice Hart's room enjoyed an Abraham Lincoln program. Doreen Wussow gave a reading "Oh Captain, My Captain." Bob Merrill gave another poem "A Hundred Years Ago." Marion Standring gave a reading, "The Woman in Lincoln's Life." Another reading given by Betty Millis was "A February Patronage."

Several other interesting readings and poems were given; also several entertaining stories about Lincoln.

RELIEF FUND PREDICTED TO DOUBLE

WASHINGTON. (AP) — Senator Frazier (R., N. D.) predicted yesterday an effort would be made in a senate appropriations subcommittee to double the $250,000,000 emergency relief appropriation.

The committee called Aubrey Williams, acting works progress administration director, before it this afternoon to explain the need for the requested increase in WPA funds, voted yesterday by the house.

Chairman Adams (D., Colo.) said the relief appropriations subcommittee would complete hearings on the $250,000,000 measure early today, and that it could be reported to the senate tomorrow. This would preclude senate consideration until Monday, lending weight to talk of a week-end recess today.

Frazier said drouth conditions in the plains states had made relief demands there acute. He said he understood there was "strong support" for a move to increase the emergency appropriation.

Some opposition has developed to the emergency appropriation, Adams said, but he predicted that there would be little change in the bill as it passed the house.

U. S. Can Double Air Production

NEW YORK.—America can double aircraft production in a year without expanding present plants, according to Leighton W. Rogers, president of the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce.

"The capacity of the plants to produce more than 100 per cent of their current output is based on conservative estimates from manufacturers who appreciate the public interest in knowing the present capabilities of this country," Rogers said.

Airplane business for the present fiscal year ending June 30, 1938, will amount to $158,000,000, $95,000,000 of this value being in military equipment, he estimated.

CIO LEADER OPPOSED BY SHIPOWNERS

SAN FRANCISCO. (AP) — Questioning of Harry Bridges, coast CIO leader, by an attorney for waterfront employers yesterday indicated the shipowners would fight any move by Bridges' International Longshoremen and Warehousemen's union to claim jurisdiction for the entire Pacific coast, including Alaska and Hawaii.

Bridges testified at a national labor relations board hearing, designed to determine whether the ILWU or the AFL-affiliated International Longshoremen's association, has legal right to act under contracts with employers. The ILWU has asked federal certification of its coastwide jurisdiction.

Gregory Harrison, attorney for the Waterfront Employers' association of the Pacific, questioned Bridges closely as to geographical divisions of the union, and whether Alaskan and Hawaiian locals were represented on the union's executive board. Bridges said they were not.

The trend of questioning indicated Harrison would later contend that the far flung certification of the ILWU would not coincide with present organization of the employers; and that since longshore negotiations have hitherto been mainly on a district, instead of coastwise basis, they should continue to be so.

Cellophane Urged To Wrap Homes

STORRS, Conn.—And now, cellophane-wrapped homes.

To the long list of things that come in cellophane Prof. R. H. Wallace of Connecticut State college her would add homes. Cellophane is an effectual insulation against cold, said Prof. Wallace, as he urged using it around windows, outside cellar doors and "other warmth-wasting openings."

U. S. Pilots Number 17,681

WASHINGTON.—A total of 17,681 pilots hold department of commerce licenses to operate 9152 aircraft in the United States, it was disclosed by the bureau of air commerce.

Of the pilots, 7475 transport, 971 limited commercial, 8604 private and 631 amateur certificates were on record as of January 1, 1938.

Non Conscription For Old England

LONDON. (AP)—Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain renewed his precessor's pledge there would be no conscription in Britain in peace time.

Asked in the house of commons whether he stood by the declaration to that effect of Earl Baldwin (former prime minister Stanley Baldwin), Chamberlain replied tersely:

"Yes, sir!"

The Suez canal was opened in 1868.

Time as of Old In Dear Ol' London

LONDON. (AP)—Much of the old still lives in modern London.

Despite the fact that a nearby clock does the job quite as well, an old nightwatchman still calls out the hours of the night in Elyplace, a tiny dead end street in the heart of the city.

Nightly from 10 until dawn he takes his cue from the neighboring clock and walks his little beat after the hour has struck, calling "past ten, past ten," or whatever the hour may be.

WHAT M.C. COBEN SAID TO HAROLD SNEAD, CHIEF PILOT OF TWA

"Do you find Camels really different from other cigarettes?"

Harold Snead gives his own answer—"Camels agree with me!" he says. And millions of other smokers agree with Pilot Snead, making Camels the largest-selling cigarette in America.

ON HIS SECOND MILLION MILES! Snead knows what he's talking about when he says: "In this line of work, healthy nerves are at a premium. I smoke—all I want. Camels don't get on my nerves."

A FEW of the instruments Snead has to watch. After a trip, Hal likes a Camel. "When I feel tired, I smoke a Camel the first chance I get," he says. "Yes, I get a 'lift' with a Camel."

AFTER THE BIG TWA SKYSLEEPER, above, was set down in Newark Airport, M. C. Coben was chatting with Hal Snead, chief pilot of the Eastern region, and Isabelle Judkins, air hostess, of Glendale, California. Hal pulled out his Camels and offered them around. And so they got to talking cigarettes!

DO PEOPLE APPRECIATE THE COSTLIER TOBACCOS IN CAMELS?

—— CAMELS ARE THE LARGEST-SELLING CIGARETTE IN AMERICA

Copyright, 1938, R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, Winston-Salem, North Carolina

Camels are a matchless blend of finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS —Turkish and Domestic

ON DUTY, Isabelle is a perfect hostess! "I notice that most of the passengers on the TWA run prefer Camels," she says. "When conversation turns to cigarettes, the comment I often hear is, 'Camels agree with me.'"

A SWIM—then a "lift" with a Camel—and Isabelle Judkins' off-duty hours pass pleasantly. "What a difference I found in Camels!" she says. "No ragged nerves. No scratchy throat."

TAX DISPUTE EXPERIMENT MADE IN L. A.

WASHINGTON. (AP)—Secretary Morgenthau announced yesterday the establishment at Los Angeles of an experiment decentralizing tax dispute negotiations.

Beginning March 1 taxpayers in Southern California and Arizona, who wish to protest against assessments of additional federal taxes by the internal revenue bureau, will be able to get a hearing and possible settlement before the new office in Los Angeles instead of carrying their cases to Washington.

The secretary asserted the new agency would have full power to handle protests and that its rulings would not be reviewed by the bureau in Washington. The taxpayer, however, will continue to have the right to appeal to the United States board of tax appeals in Washington, an independent quasi-judicial body.

Syracuse university is planning a reenactment of the constitutional convention of 1787 with students wearing costumes typical of the period.

Mary Hampton's Column

Old hands at this business of looking really smart always concentrates on accessories, before costumes even, this early in the season. After all, the weather so mistreats clothes at just this time of year that, providing one does rush out and buy at once, they cannot always wear them. But with accessories it is different—and they tell a new tale! And so women of chic sort of assert their "know" by the tilt of a wicked new hat, which makes conservatives catch their breath—or an enormous handbag which turns everyone green with immediate envy—or maybe a whole batch of barbaric bracelets which tinkle and move along the whole forearm in the newest way.

This is the time of year when a new, wee pink collar at the neckline of that collarless black afternoon frock—a pert handkie with a desert cactus printed on it peeking out of the pocket—a silly bunching of veil in the unusual way—and much else—suddenly lifts one from winter into the fresh and gay world of coming Spring, and simply recharges the spirits of every woman.

Oh—about veils — they have crashed the gates with headline stories. It is veils and veils and more veils—for everybody and every hour! There will be wide-meshed, crisp affairs, crushed around stiff sailors with bows perking out from the crown. There will be soft things which hang way down the back with a very significant similarity to the Spanish Mantilla. These go well with dinner costumes or wee dinner hats! There will be illusive bits covering the eyes—or, sometimes—just shadowing them from the brim. And for evening, still more will cover the head and hair for, besides their chic and allure, they so practically protect the curls. New veils tend more to be straight yardage specially arranged, rather than the circular one which just flops all around. And a coarse, square mesh type is popping up on the smartest of new hats everywhere so far.

Dear "Admirer"—You are so lucky to have such a lovely figure at the age of 48! Or perhaps, as is usually the case, you are wise—not just lucky! First of all, this medium blue wool suit has wonderful possibilities for distinctive new chic—touched off with a bit of purple and pink! I would have a navy hat with pink and just a little purple in flower trim—and in all probability the sort of veil I just mentioned; then a dusty salmon pink blouse, navy shoes and bag, and a dab of purple in a lapel pin or pocket handkie. Gloves will probably be a pinkish beige tone. Then for the three-piece, knitted, navy ensemble do buy these reddish-clay shoes and bag, an a navy sport hat with a touch of this as well as other colors on it. There will be a scarf at the neck with that red tone in it too. Then these two groups of accessories can be interchanged for variety! For the new clothes, how would you like a sand wool bolero suit (same accessories can be worked in). Suppose you get these things together and then write about the rest.

MARY HAMPTON.

MUSSOLINI'S EFFIGY BURNED

MELBOURNE, Australia. (AP)—An angry crowd of 2000 yesterday burned an effigy of Premier Mussolini as a result of a complaint by a taxi driver that he had been attacked aboard the Italian cruiser Raimondo Montecuccoli.

Thousands watched the demonstration after police frustrated an attempt to hold the display on the wharf alongside the visiting cruiser.

120,000 FIRS FOR PLANTING

PLACERVILLE. (AP)—Six years from now 12,000 silver tip fir trees, which are popular at Christmas, will be available if the plans of a commercial fruit company near Camino, reach fruition.

The company will set out 160,000 trees on a portion of its pear ranch property near Camino and after the sixth year an annual yield of 120,000 trees is expected. Christmas berries also will be planted.

The company manager here is preparing the seed beds and the planting of large plots will begin in April.

The Christmas tree industry will be worked jointly with pear orchards.

FIREMEN BURN HOUSE

BROOKHAVEN, Pa. (AP) — Things were dull around the firehouse of the Brookhaven Volunteer Fire company yesterday, so Chief Joe McCain put the boys to work burning weeds on the lot. Then they went to lunch. The firehouse caught fire—and burned to the ground.

GOOD BUYS IN NITROGEN LISTED

What kind of fertilizers to use in citrus and avocado groves this time of year is explained in a new bulletin available at the office of Harold E. Wahlberg, Orange county farm advisor.

Wahlberg says the information in the pamphlet is based on tests and experiments conducted by Orange county and the experiment station over a period of 30 years.

"Some of the mineral sources of nitrogen continue to be the best buy in nitrogen," Wahlberg says.

The bulletin shows comparisons of nitrogen values based on grower association quotations for January. The values presented in the following table indicate the current cost in cents per pound of nitrogen for the materials named: sulphate of ammonia 8.7c, Cal nitro 9c, calcium nitrate 10.9c, nitrate of soda 10.9c, liquid ammonia 11.2c, ammonium phosphate 14.4c, dried blood 18.7c, fish meal 20.9c, tankage 21.3c, cottonseed meal 23.6c, 10-10-5 23.7c, nitroganic 24.6c and cocoanut meal 25c.

Pineapple Taking Place of Apple?

OTTAWA, Canada. — Customs duties are forcing Canadians to give up northwest apples and eat pineapples instead. Ontario citizens protested here.

"Because of lower customs duties from the orient, pineapple from Singapore, raised by 10-cent-a-day coolie labor, is now replacing the Canadian and American apples in the Canadian diet," according to a report to the government. "If dumping of oriental fruit is not stopped, Canadian apple ranchers will go bankrupt."

Robot Warship Waits Beating

PORTSMOUTH, England. (AP)—Britain's robot warship Centurion is going to have a troublesome year.

This spring, she will be fired at by every ship in the Mediterranean fleet. In the summer and autumn, ships of the home fleet, aircraft and home defense forts will practice bombing and gunnery on her.

While under fire the Centurion will be without a crew, and will be controlled by radio from a de-[illegible]er some miles astern.

9 PERSONS DIE FROM EATING BISCUITS

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP)—Deaths of nine persons by poison believed to have been eaten in biscuits, was revealed here yesterday.

Detective-Sergeant J. E. Adams of the Charlottesville police said he was attempting to determine whether the poison was accidentally mixed with flour at the home of George Shiflett or deliberately placed there.

The investigation was launched after chemical analyses showed the poison was present in the bodies of Mr. and Mrs. George Shiflett, their five children, and Mrs. Maggie Shiflett and her son.

Mrs. George Shiflett and her son, Randolph, aged 10, were paralyzed. Others of the family were made less seriously ill.

ORANGE, TUSTIN IN C. I. F. CAGE PLAYOFF

SPORTS Copy Wrighted

ODDS and ENDS

By PAUL WRIGHT

Basketball fans should flock to Tustin tonight for that C. I. F. playoff "natural" between Hod Chambers' Orange Panthers and Bill Cole's Tustin Tillers.

Circus bleachers will be installed to accommodate 1000 fans, but that number of seats won't last long for a game between these heated rivals—particularly with the low admission of 25 cents prevailing.

With everything at stake, it should be a whale of a game, and there will be a lot of hoarse voices among the rooters Saturday morning.

El Trojan has been playing second-fiddle to both Stanford and California in Pacific Coast conference basketball this year, but U. S. C. always manages to survive the U. C. L. A. series.

The Westwood Bruins have taken it on the chin 22 consecutive times, and haven't beaten the Trojans since 1932. U. S. C. won the final game of the series that season, took three in '33, four each in '34, '35, '36, and '37. The Trojans have won two straight this year, 48-31 and 40-30.

Third game of the current series will be played at Pan-Pacific auditorium in Los Angeles tonight . . . The Trojan frosh, who have won 73 STRAIGHT since 1934, tackle the U. C. L. A. yearlings in the curtain-raiser, which will be of local interest now that Sammy Lockhart, 6 ft. 3 in. guard has enrolled at U. C. L. A. Lockhart gained all-Coast Preparatory league recognition with our Santa Ana Saints two years ago. He is a brother of Leonard Lockhart, the former Saint and Don star now with the Woolen Mills.

Right behind Revolta is Jimmy Thomson of Shawnee-on-the-Delaware, with $2380. Jim Adamick 8 to 5 Over Harry Thomas Tonight

WINNER WILL FIGHT LOUIS IN 'TUNEUP'

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK. (AP) — At a late hour today, nobody had been found willing to hazard a guess on the purpose, not to mention the outcome of tonight's 10-round duel between Jimmy Adamick, the kid from Detroit, and bouncing Harry Thomas.

The whole affair had everybody so puzzled that many intended to go and see for themselves, the expectation being that around $25,000 worth would turn up at Madison Square Garden. The fact that Old Doc Kearns, the bogey man of boxing, was going to be in Adamick's corner undoubtedly added to the popular interest.

Ever since the strident voice of the doctor was heard clear from Detroit proclaiming the unqualified greatness of his newest protege, the ears of those closest to boxing have been perked up. It was ordained from the first that Kearns and Adamick would make their way East eventually, and here they are.

Adamick, through no particular fault of his own, finds himself in a tough spot for a youngster. Kearns, the most articulate of all fight managers, said that Adamick was "better than Dempsey." He wasn't, of course, talking in his best superlatives on that occasion.

Anyway, Adamick got here, and in his gymnasium workouts he looks only like a willing but unskilled young fighter, with a good punch when it lands. The original odds, mostly on Kearns' sayso, were 3 to 1 that the Michigan terror would slam Thomas about worse than Max Schmeling did some months ago.

But as the amazement grew at Adamick's ineptitude, the boys began putting padlocks on their money pockets, having decided it would be better not to bet at all, but just to wait and see. The odds were supposed to be 8-5 on Adamick today, but there wasn't any business.

The winner has been "signed" to give Joe Louis a tune-up in April. The only attraction in a Thomas-Louis classic, however, would be to see whether Joe could knock Harry down more times than Schmeling did, which was eight by unofficial count.

In Two 'Tuneups' for Schmeling

Easy as jackstraws won't be the two tuneup matches which Champion Joe Louis must fight in preparation for his supreme challenger, Max Schmeling, in June. Joe figures he'll have a tougher time getting Natie Mann to drop next Wednesday night than he does spilling the above sticks. He also is slated to fight April 8 the winner of tonight's Jimmy Adamick-Harry Thomas bout.

'HILL-BILLY' MAKES HIT

Stecklin Comic on Mat; Romano Victor

Tennessee's bearded hill-billy, Lem Stecklin, who wrestles in overalls and swings a wicked uppercut, added a touch of comedy to the O. C. A. C. mat wars last night.

He introduced his pet raccoon, Oscar, to the fans, but under rules of the California athletic commission, the animal was removed before the bout began. Lem resorted to slam-bang tactics to defeat Duke Pettigrove of Washington in 18 min. 23 secs. with an arm stretch. He would rub his long whiskers against Pettigrove's chest, and at one interval pitched his rival out of the ring.

Most scientific match of the evening was waged between Ernie (Pretty Boy) Piluso and Jimmy Lott, but the finish was marred by an eye injury to Piluso, who was unable to continue after 6 min. 29 secs. of the second fall, after winning the first in 25 min. 6 secs. with a back-breaker. Lott, one of the cleverest performers ever seen at the 101 arena, was awarded the match.

Paul Buzzell, "The Black Dragon" of Oklahoma, succumbed to Filipe Romano in the first fall in 22 min. 3 secs. with a short-arm scissors, and although Buzzell won the second fall in 6 min. 29 secs. with a Boston crab, he was disqualified for continuing the hold several seconds after the referee had patted his back.

Ted Christy defeated the Hawaiian, Lai Kapu, in a preliminary in 12 min. 44 secs. with a leg lock and body press.

Referee Mickey McMasters was in "hot water" all evening with the fans, who booed him lustily.

BEARS' LEAD THREATENED

Stanford Five Sees Deadlock Tonight

PALO ALTO. (AP)—Stanford's Indians could tie California for the lead of the Southern division of the Pacific coast conference by winning the third game of their basketball series here tonight.

California won the first game by a 47 to 44 margin but a couple of weeks ago Stanford gave the Bears a 62 to 33 trouncing, and because of that lopsided victory the Indians were favorites to repeat.

The Bears, who lead the division by one full game, displayed ragged basketball in downing U. C. L. A. twice at Berkeley last week-end, while Stanford was back in championship form winning a pair from Southern California.

A victory tonight would install Stanford as strong favorite to win the Southern division and defend the Pacific coast conference title they have held the last two years.

TROJANS, BRUINS CLASH TONIGHT

LOS ANGELES. (AP)—Southern California's basketball team, a disappointing third in the coast conference race, will seek another victory tonight over the cellar champion, U. C. L. A., at Pan-Pacific auditorium.

U. C. L. A., beaten eight times this season, has not defeated Southern California for six years.

Games Tonight

Santa Ana at Riverside.
Pomona at Redlands.
Chaffey at San Bernardino.

Third place in Citrus Belt league basketball will be on the block tonight when Coach Joe Koegler escorts his Santa Ana High school varsity to Riverside to test the Bears at 8:15 o'clock. The sophomore quintets of the two schools will tangle in the 7 o'clock preliminary.

Chaffey's league-leading Tigers are virtually certain to send San Bernardino down the ladder tonight, leaving the third spot for either Santa Ana or Riverside. The Saints scored an upset in the first round, and may do it again in Riverside's own lair.

It will be the last trip for Koegler's preps who remain at home for final league games with Pomona Feb. 25 and San Bernardino March 4 in Andrews gymnasium on the high school campus.

Tonight's starting lineup, Koegler indicated, probably will be the same that upset Redlands, 31-26, here last week, with Gene O'Campo and Pete Partida at forward, Melvin Barron at center, Larry Tway and Maurice Young at guard.

TIGER MAY RUN IN BIG DERBY

Los Angeles. (AP) — Whether Tiger, the Milky Way farm's crack 3-year-old, will run in the $50,000 Santa Anita derby next Tuesday remained doubtful today.

Trainer Bob McGarvey gave the railroads a thrill between regular races yesterday when he sent Tiger out for a workout at six furlongs. Breaking with his stable mate, Nation's Taste, Tiger skipped impressively through the distance in the fast time of one minute 11.1 seconds.

Until the workout, it was feared that Mrs. Ethel V. Mars' candidate was far from a race, since he has not gone to the post this year.

Bert Colima II Fights Soldier

HOLLYWOOD. (AP)—The army will take over the Legion stadium, theoretically speaking, tonight when Soldier Frankie Valariano tackles Bert Colima II in a 10-round bout.

Valariano is a rookie stationed at Fort McArthur and makes his first 10-round start tonight. The two fighters are welterweights.

DONS' RUGGERS WILL TRAVEL

Santa Ana Jaysee's crack rugby team will invade Santa Barbara tonight for a game with the state collegians.

Coach Ernest Butterworth's forwards will be Bill Twist, Bob Faul, Carl Benson, Jerry Nesmith, Glen Cave, Bill Semnacher, Tom Anderson aid Grant Kellar. In the backfield there will be Hal Tucker, Danny Boyd, John Joseph, Larry Timken, Bob Pannell, Fred Kobayashi and Bill Wilson.

Among others seeking "sub" roles are Gordon Baker, Jack Preston, Ray Huntsinger, Louis Markel, George Aupperle, Dave Clark, John McBride and Ralph Pagenkopp.

Racing of 2-Year Olds Limited on California Tracks

LOS ANGELES. (AP)—Racing of 2-year-olds was limited in a protective ruling today by the California horse racing board effective next year.

To save turf "babies" from early strain, the board ordered that 2-year-olds should not be allowed to compete at tracks in the state until May 1 of the 2-year-old year.

The rule will eliminate Santa Anita park's baby events each January and February. It was recommended by the California Breeders association. Observers recalled two 2-year-olds, Airflame and Balking, flashed world record speed at Santa Anita, but later failed to develop.

LEWIS COACHES AT LA VERNE

LA VERNE, Calif. (AP) — Phil (Duffy) Lewis, former Occidental college football and baseball star, has been appointed director of men's athletics and head grid coach at La Verne college.

Lewis, a product of Glendale Junior college, pitched the Occidental baseball team to two consecutive league titles before he was graduated in 1935. He was an all-conference back on Glendale's football squad. The La Verne post was resigned by Henry Lloyd, who had held it two years.

DONS SWAMP CITRUS BY 61-31 SCORE

Shattering basketball records right and left and having their first field night in 24 games this season, Santa Ana's Junior collegians overwhelmed Citrus Owls, 61-31, at Tustin last night.

Record No. 1 was 21 points tossed in by Cy Leivermann, the Dons' six-six center, who broke his previous individual high-scoring mark for the season of 19 points against LaVerne college.

(2) The Dons set a new team scoring mark of 61 points for the season, beating by 10 points the mark of 51 points made against Pomona Jaysee last week.

(3) Coach Blanchard Beatty's cohorts, on their longest winning rampage in several seasons, connected for third consecutive Eastern conference victory that placed them in third place with an average of .600. With a win over Riverside next week, the Dons will finish in their highest league standing since 1933.

(3 The Santa Anans scored their 11th victory of the season against 13 defeats—their fifth win in the last seven starts.

Citrus was handicapped from the start by the loss of Bob Merchant, high-scoring forward. Ernie Poore, all-conference halfback on the football team, was bottled up.

Blowing a 26-18 lead at the half, Al's Lock and Key shop basketball club lost its second Y. M. C. A. league game last night, 39-37, in an overtime period with Treesweet Products. The two teams were deadlocked at 36-36 at the end of the regular playing period.

Three Aces in Bill Cole's Deck

Three of the five boys who brought Tustin the Southern California championship in basketball last winter will be in Coach Bill Cole's lineup tonight as Tustin again enters the C. I. F. playoffs against Orange on the Tustin floor. They are, left to right, Walt Linker, his brother Vic Linker and Larry Monroy.

Tustin Dominates All-League Team

Selection today of the official all-Orange Prep league basketball teams had a distinct Tustin High school flavor as three regulars who sparked Coach Ralph (Bill) Cole's Farmers to the title gained first-string recognition, and a San Juan Capistrano transfer to Tustin also made the grade. The all-league quintet was selected by coaches and sports writers of the district.

Winners of the championship by two full games over San Juan Capistrano and Laguna Beach, Tustin took the lion's share with the three regulars from last year's Southern California C. I. F. champion—Larry Monroy, Vic and Walt Linker.

Harold Lilley, mid-semester enrollee at Tustin from San Juan Capistrano, gives Cole's club a decided edge. Rollo Beck, Laguna stalwart, was nominated for the center post.

Lilley and Vic Walker were placed on the front rank as forwards and Monroy shifted to guard with Walt Linker. The selections:

First String	Pos.	Second String
V. Linker (T)	F	Coates (GG)
Lilley (SJC)	F	Stoddard (SJC)
Beck (LB)	C	Winkler (T)
Monroy (T)	G	Nelson (BO)
W. Linker (T)	G	Henry (LB)

First string nominations were closely contested by second-stringers. Capistrano's Stoddard and Chet Coates of Garden Grove were nosed out for forward positions, but Everett Winkler was a unanimous choice for second-string center. Nelson of Brea-Olinda and Henry of Laguna Beach fill out the "seconds" as guards.

SHARPSHOOTING SANTA ANITA

By FRANK FISKE

This pastime of trying to pick out of the day's card the horses that have a chance to win and will pay a goodly price if they do, is not all honey and roses by any means. But once in a while the horses do right by the harassed handicapper.

That race with Little Nymph, Torolee and Donna Leona running in the order named yesterday after we had picked them all in the money heartened my operatives and myself no end and it is with unusual eclat (or something) that we trot out today's dangerous advice for the—

First . . . Can't get away from the long-shot feeling so in this one it's COMO NO—BANNER MAN—RIVER PIRATE.

Second . . . They ought to put a "Keep off the grass" sign for this one and I, for one, don't care to play it. Perhaps the best of them are FOAM—NEDROB—SPARKLING EYES. By the way, keep the NEDROB mare in mind when the distance is lengthened out to a mile or more.

Third . . . Here's one that's been bad lucky or deliberately kept under cover—TORCHY. And don't forget I told you he was good. LAST LAY and STIMULI are his contention.

Fourth . . . PONDOSA will come poking into the winner's circle like a gossip's nose. If anything happens to let a long shot in, the lucky ones will probably be FLORAGINA and ROCCO.

Fifth . . . Oh, well, I suppose you're getting tired of hearing about BONILUNA, but I'm still sticking by her. POLYCLETUS, the favorite, will take a bit of beating and DOLAWAY may do a neat job of form-upsetting.

Sixth . . . This is anybody's race and old CAMPILLO is still honest and trying. TRENT is always shooting for bear and ORRA is good enough to be up in there at the finish.

Seventh . . . They've been trying to find a spot for SHASTA RACKET for quite awhile and it looks as though they had succeeded here. LAME DUCK and FLEETING MOON are the ones to beat.

Eight . . . Let's drown our sorrows in a brandy-soda and go home now. No? All right—try for the jack pot with NASSLYN—REDRESS—CUSTOMIZED.

Best bets—A seat in the grandstand.

Bookie traps — TORCHY and SHASTA RACKET.

SAN GABRIEL FIVE WILL MEET VICTOR

Champions of their respective circuits, Orange of the Sunset Prep league and Tustin of the Orange league send their smooth basketball teams into the first round of the C. I. F. playoffs at Tustin tonight. There will be no preliminary, the varsity game being moved to 7:30 o'clock.

The winner will enter the second round two weeks from tonight against the San Gabriel league champion—as yet undetermined.

The league records follow.

29	L. B. Jordan	19
39	Excelsior	18

TUSTIN

35	Valencia	15
24	Laguna Beach	6
33	Garden Grove	22
25	S. J. Capistrano	23
40	Brea-Olinda	13

Orange, with an all-senior lineup, appears to have a slight edge with Dick Gunther and Henry Martinez at forward, Bob (Spider) Schildmeyer at center, Ray Amling and Vernon Worden at guard.

Missing the sensational Francis brothers from their Southern California championship club of last season, Tustin nevertheless has a strong defensive machine built around the Linker brothers—Walt and Vic and Larry Monroy, who plays either forward or guard. The Francis brothers have been replaced in the regular lineup by Everett Winkler, sensational freshman center, and Joe Kiersey, guard. Tustin also has been strengthened by a fine transfer from San Juan Capistrano, Harold Lilley.

Many are rating the game a toss-up.

There will be a 25-cent admission charge. One thousand seats will be available.

BARNHART WINS FOR WEAVERS

"Don't I know it, Burl," Ab Hudkins (right) comes back. "Prince Albert is a good friend o' mine. It treats my tongue right, and it draws perfect.

In fact, P. A. makes a fellow feel he's right with the world."

"Sure enough," Bruce Galbraith (center) puts in. "It's one 'makin's' tobacco that rings the bell everywhere. I understand it's as popular in the big cities as it is out here on the prairies." (Plenty popular with pipe-smokers everywhere too!)

SANTA ANA MAY GET WPA ART

With the WPA federal art project in Los Angeles offering works of art to tax-supported public buildings on a "permanent loan" basis, Frank Henderson, superintendent of schools, and Mayor Fred Rowland both express interest in the proposal. They were considering today the possibility of obtaining pictures and sculpture for Santa Ana buildings.

The WPA points out it is resuming allocation of easel pictures, small sculpture, ceramics and prints to all buildings either wholly or partially tax-supported.

Only remuneration expected by the project is cost of materials, which goes into its non-labor funds.

All are original work by project artists and will not be offered commercially, Melvin Terry, project supervisor says. An exhibit of material to be allocated is being held at the state office exhibition gallery, 808 South Berendo street, Los Angeles. It is open daily except Sunday, from 9 a. m. to 6 p. m. There is no admission charge.

Terry may be reached by qualified perosons or institutions interested in obtaining allocation material at the telephone number DRexel 8331, Los Angeles. The federal art project maintains headquarters at 1634 Temple street, Los Angeles.

VETERAN JUDGE DEATH VICTIM

CHICAGO. (AP)—Judge Joseph B. David, veteran of more than two decades on superior and criminal court benches in Cook county and often called Chicago's most colorful jurist, died last night of heart disease. He was 74 years old and had been confined for five months.

Judge David was the center of many controversies with attorneys, civic associations, other courts and county and state officials because of his pungent courtroom comments.

A foe of prohibition and easy divorces during his 52 years as a lawyer and 21 as a judge, the jurist last year unearthed a 67-year-old decision to support his personal fight to keep Chicago from becoming a "second Reno." Such states as Nevada "that ask for only six weeks' residence for the filing of a suit for divorce should be kicked out of the union," he opined.

BALKAN ENTENTE CHANGES SETUP

ANKARA. (AP)—Recent dramatic changes in Central and Southeastern Europe have caused postponment until Feb. 25 of the conference of the Balkan entente, originally scheduled to open here today.

The change of governments in Rumania was cited as reason for the postponement, but today officials admitted the extension of Nazi influence into Austria confronted the conference with another serious problem. Turkey, Greece, Yugoslavia are members of the Balkan entente.

Dragnet Out for Missing 'Windy'

"Windy" blew away yesterday.

He's a small black cocker spaniel belonging to Mrs. John Ball, 2308 Oakmont street. Windy, about a year old and distinguishable by a white spot under his throat, was listed as lost, strayed or stolen in a police report today.

Poundmaster Harold Pickering is leading the search.

China Boys Don't Take to Jap Invaders

Youngsters look askance at the Nippon soldiers as the conquerors try to interest them in games after Shanghai had been taken. The chill of the conquest seems to pervade even the innocent minds of the little fellows who sense, apparently, that the uniformed Japs are their enemies.

THE FRIDAY AFTERNOON

Here and There With Southern California Artists

By DONALD BUTTON

From out the night, from out the night . . . stars flashing close to earth and in their golden trail . . . the earth-luminaries who have guided my path to space that is beyond Space . . .

Marian Anderson in the aureate concert of all my concert-going . . .

Vilhjamur Stefansson turning my geography upside down and calling attention to the importance of the crossroads of the civilized world-of-air-travel in his lecture at Bridges, Pomona college, Tuesday night . . .

Leslie Powell sending his brilliant "Jefferson Market" from New York at the last minute for the Library show . . .

Finally, meteoric Milford Zornes in the best, and most exciting painting of an eventful, step-by-step forward career at Rembrandt hall, Pomona college . . .

These are the things that renew my desire for living. These are the things (being a journey far from the commonplace and the the routine) that are, to me, the best antidote for a pre-spring fever.

* * *

Those who did not know Milford Zornes' work before this most remarkable show at Pomona college (until the 26th), cannot know what strides he has taken toward an assured and masterful painting.

Two things contribute, I believe—his teaching at Pasadena and the murals for Claremont postoffice. Both have been discipline, but they have also been heartening encouragement.

Where before, Zornes was the lanky student, he is now the sure conqueror of brush and water and color. He has reached heights never before his in watercolor painting!

Prepared for an eye-opener in the way of exhibitions by seeing the sketches just after his return from Arizona at Christmas, I was not quite ready for the speechless surprise that was mine on first reviewing them Tuesday night.

I had never been so overcome by painting, never so emotional over painting as when first seeing Millard Sheets' eastern exhibition of last year. Close analyzation, I have come to believe, reveals Zornes' work now on view is as overwhelming. I know not words for my enthusiasm!

* * *

Out of this show I have, you might as well know, certain favorites. These may not be the best painting, but I think they are the best index to that painting which is Milford Zornes.

There's "The Well at Guadalupe" with its powerful group of figures (one of Zornes' best compositions).

"The Sea at Piedras Blancas" is one of his "wettest" papers, has the mystical quality of the lithograph "El Tranquillon."

The mountains are to my liking in "Morning Travelers," as are the soft greens of "Superstition Mountain."

As intense color as I have yet to see in watercolor marks "McDowell Mountain."

And if you go first to Claremont postoffice to view the mural, you'll see what Zornes learned to put to use for "The Ruins of Fort Tyson."

If you want to see an event-making exhibition in the development of California watercolor painting, you will march upon Claremont before Feb. 26!

LIBERTY VS. PARKING

Another angle concerning the building of a new Library has come to mind.

Announcement that Chamber of Commerce officials would confer with the new city planning consultant concerning the parking problem develops this suggestion—

Admitting the need of a centrally-located Library, is there any reason why a parking-garage (producing revenue) could not be put under a library?

Going one step further, how about having only the main desk of the library on the first floor, and giving the valuable street frontage over to additional revenue producing stores and shops?

Ramps would eliminate difficulties in reaching the upper levels where the stacks, reading rooms and gallery-auditorium would be placed. These rooms, too, would be removed from street noises and confusion.

The proposal is mine. I do think it is worth thinking through.

WOLFE ON MEXICO

"The sensitive observer . . . is not only traveling upward in space, but also backward in time."

Thus Bertram Wolfe introduces us to his "Portrait of Mexico" with which I have just finished.

Reading on, one finds an emphasis on "backward in time," and realizes he must go to Mexico soon if he is to see it in its fullest beauty.

The book is considerable enhanced by the reproductions of the work of Diego Rivera, and it is authenticated by Rivera's endorsement of it.

But then—you'd better read for yourself! I don't like to tell!

'MAYALAND'

Sunday afternoon, Blanche Collet Wagner will be honored with a reception at Bowers Museum that will mark the release of her newly published book "Tales of Mayaland."

Mrs. Wagner will talk upon the costumes, and the manner of living of the Mayans.

Those of us who find a link between the Mayans and the Chinese culture will surely want to hear Mrs. Wagner talk.

Knowing her gracious manner and interest in the subject, I heartily recommend your presence at the museum Sunday.

FINGERPRINT EXPERT HELD IN EXTORTION

NEW YORK.—Frank Cornelius Vanderplas, amateur fingerprint and ballistic expert, is being held by federal bureau of investigation agents on charges of trying to extort $5000 from socially prominent Gerald Moncrieffe Livingston, New York broker.

Vanderplas, a native of Amsterdam, Holland, and the father of three children, was taken into custody near his home in Montclair, N. J., yesterday. He waived removal proceedings and was brought to New York after questioning in the Newark FBI office.

Agents said the prisoner admitted writing three extortion notes to Livingston, a resident of Huntington, Long Island. They quoted him as saying he became frightened each time he tried to collect the money because he thought agents might be planted near the scene.

Brick Dust

RAMBLING AROUND ORANGE COUNTY

—with—

T. N. (BRICK) GAINES

Hope you-all like poetry, on account of you're going to get plenty in the next few minutes. Either that, or run!

You'll recall a few days ago news stories about Wilbur the Whale visiting Newport. Well, that visit brought out a copy of a famous poem, once printed by Ed Ainsworth, but more than worth re-printing. That was a long time ago, anyway. Ed gave credit for the masterpiece to Harry Welch at Newport, but I dunno!

Without further fighting, here's the pome. Wade right in, because it's good stuff:

THE TALE OF A WHALE
(By Harry Welch)

Oh ships are ships and men are men
Wherever the sea is wet,
But list, me lads, while I tell to you
The tale of the "Newport's" pet.

The sea it is a funny place
Filled full of finny things
There are fish that talk and fish that walk
And even fish with wings.

Now "Newport's" men are keen to ken
They see all things in sight,
They can see a shark though the night be dark
And a black fish when it's white.

So this is the tale of a friendly whale
A whale of a tale but true;
You'd hear it best when the wind is west
And the work o' the day is through.

Folks think that all the fish that swim
Are healthy as a shad
But many a whale has a broken tail
And a soretoothed shark is sad.

An eel with mumps feels in the dumps,
Pain cuts him like a knife,
An' a porp with the pip keeps clear of a ship
If he wants some peace in his life.

We was sailing along to an eight-knot song
Tuned by the "Newport's" crew
When up from below as straight as a crow
This whale of my tale she blew.

She blew, she blew, just ask the crew
If she didn't, and shower the spray
For a mile or more, with a whale of a roar
O'er the length of Smugglers' Bay.

If that had been all, there'd be nothing to call
For a burst of a verse from me,
But along with the roar and the spray was more,
You could smell but you could not see.

I've read of the mumps and camel's humps
And that perfume and this
But I've never before knew a whale that sure
Had a case of hal-i-to-sis.

We sure was made, we was also sad,
And the pain of that whale was keen
So we hurried right back on the starboard tack
For a barrel of Listerine.

With a bale o' kelp and the mast to help
We made a whale of a swab,
We went right to work with never a shirk
For it sure was a hospital job.

We swabbed the whale from head to tail
As four out of five would do,
Then building our hope on a tub of soap
We did the same for the crew.

The whale never knew what a breath he blew,
He was deadly as Moby Dick
But our Listerine swab did a dandy job
And sweetened him up right quick.

Thereafter that whale when we went for a sail
Would meet us, his face all in smiles,
We'd throw him a rope which was flavored with soap
And at eight knots he'd tow us for miles.

So now when you sail in search of a whale
And meet one that smells like a rose
You've met up with one sweet son of a gun
Who's been swabbed from his nose to his toes.

So white ships are ships and men are men
And the sea it always is wet,
This whale will remain in pleasure and pain
The crew of the "Newport's" pet.

BISHOP TELLS GROWERS OF MENACE

Santiago Association Re-Elects Old Board

ORANGE.—Farmers of California are roused today as never before and are acting with a thought said Holmes Bishop, California president of the Associated Farmers, when he spoke before ranchers affiliated with the Santiago Orange Growers yesterday in the Intermediate school.

He announced that now, instead of their being on the defensive against racketeering labor organizers, the farmers are carrying on an offensive warfare in order that trouble may be prevented, instead of combatting after it has started.

FIGHT RACKETEERS

The Associated Farmers is a non-partisan, non-profit, non-sectarian group, organized for a patriotic movement of self protection, he continued. Farmers have determined that no longer will they submit to the dictatorship of racketeering labor leaders, most of them men who have as their aim the ultimate overthrow of the government.

Problems of one branch of agriculture are problems of all, the speaker added, citing the edict of Harry Bridges, that unless all sheep shearers joined the CIO no wool would be shipped from Pacific ports. Wool growers answered from their Salt Lake convention that henceforth they will ship by rail to eastern ports.

PROPAGANDA TOLD

Unions are telling employes in agricultural pursuits that their employers are enemies, when the exact opposite is the truth, Bishop said. This propaganda is the first step in revolution, which can come, but which the speaker said he feels will not come because he has so much faith in the farmers of the United States.

"Any employer who will stoop to a closed shop is a jellyfish," he concluded, "but the farmer is the snag the organizers have struck. He won't give up. He is a fighting fool."

Prior to Bishop's talk, George Graham, Orange county secretary, and Clarence Skiles, manager of the Orange County Fruit exchange spoke.

Growers elected the same board of directors for the coming year. They are C. P. Boyer, H. A. Brown, J. Ray Smith, Porter Luther, J. F. Witt, E. H. Dierker and George Schnackenberg.

A resolution was adopted which conveyed to the state parcels of land bordering South Glassell street, which the state needs in its street widening program of that thoroughfare. City-owned pipes are below the surface of the land so deeded.

City Engineer C. C. Bonebrake was formally appointed sponsor foreman of the WPA sewer job on Tustin street, at a salary of $120 per month.

Oscar Stutheit was given a warrant for $100, the fund previously budgeted for the night ball club. The club thanked the council through Stutheit for the financial assistance.

The Wrong Murderer

By HUGH CLEVELY

CHAPTER ONE

DEATH ON THE HIGH ROAD

Terence Mahony was bored. The company of his friend Billy Ross bored him. It had bored him for the last seven days. That astonished Mahony. It had never occurred to him that some day Billy Ross would bore him.

The two young men had been friends for ten years. A certain carefree lawlessness common to both of them had drawn them together while they were still at school, and the friendship had continued after they left school.

On one occasion, at considerable personal risk, Ross had saved Mahony's life. The matter was never referred to between them, but Mahony remembered it.

And now Ross was boring him. He felt rather uncomfortable about it. Still, there it was. Oh well, reflected Mahony philosophically, no doubt time and fate and change had been at work in their well-known manner during the last four years, and this was the result. But it annoyed him.

He had returned from a four years' stay in China a week previously, and had been staying with Ross at his London flat. During the whole of that week he had found Ross nervous, fidgety and irritable—quite unlike the happy-go-lucky Ross whom he remembered.

Now the two of them had halted for a drink at a wayside inn on their way down to the house of Captain Ross, R. N., Billy's father, who was giving a big dinner party. Two other guests from London, whom Mahony had met, were also coming down for the party: Elsa Little, a young film actress, and Ambrose Lawson, a business friend of Billy. They were to stay the night at Captain Ross' house and return to London the next day.

As they sipped their cocktails at the bar counter, Terence Mahony wondered for the hundredth time at the change that had come over Billy. At times Billy's mouth twitched oddly; he had a pale, unhealthy look; he could not keep his hands still. Behind the bar the platinum blonde barmaid was reading an evening paper.

"Another young society girl missing from home," she observed with some relish. "I wonder what's happened to her.

Ross made a sudden irritable gesture and knocked over his glass. The liquid ran over the bar counter. "Hell!" he said in a bad-tempered voice—the voice of a man whose nerves are very much on edge. The barmaid looked up from her paper at Mahony and made a surprised face, as if to say: "There's a nasty temper for you."

"I'm sick of this place," went on Ross roughly. "Let's get out of it."

"As you like," agreed Mahony good-temperedly. For himself, he could see nothing wrong with the place, but if that was the way Billy felt about it . . .

They left the inn and went out to Billy's car. Though it was still early in the evening, darkness had already fallen. About twenty-five miles separated them from Captain Ross' house in Hampshire. Billy stepped into the driving-seat, Mahony got in beside him and they started.

It was a bleak, cold evening, and there was little traffic on the road. About two miles out of Bagbury where they had stopped for their drink, they heard the booming roar of a powerful engine behind them, and the glare of strong headlights shone past them, lighting up the hedges at the sides of the road.

Ross turned and looked back over his shoulder. In the glare of the following headlights his face looked more than ever drawn and pale.

"We're being followed," he said. "I know whose car that is."

There was a harsh jerkiness in his voice; he spoke in the tone of a man suddenly awakened to a deadly peril. Mahony did not know what to say; he did not understand his friend's frame of mind.

"Is there any harm in that?" he asked placidly. "Why shouldn't he follow us if he wants to?"

Ross laughed, a short laugh that had a distinct note of hysteria in it.

"What harm . . . ?" he said, in a high pitched voice. "What harm . . . ? Perhaps you'll find out."

That was all he said. His foot went down hard on the accelerator, and the car shot forward at vastly increased speed. The needle of the speedometer moved from forty to forty-five, forty-five to fifty-five, fifty-five—more slowly—to sixty, and there remained quivering slightly. But the booming roar behind sounded more loudly; the glare of the pursuing headlights increased in intensity.

Mahony glanced back over his shoulder. Now the pursuing car was only a few yards behind, its headlights throwing a dazzling blaze of light in Mahony's eyes. As he looked, screwing up his eyes trying to see better, there came from behind that brilliant glare a sharp explosion and a sudden distinct spit of red flame. Something went "whit!" over the top of the car.

"What the blazing hell!" exclaimed Mahony in a tone of scandalized astonishment. "The swine's shooting at us with a pistol."

Ross did not answer; he did not seem to hear; all his attention was concentrated grimly on driving. From behind came the sound of more shooting, sharp and vicious: crack, crack, crack, like a big whiplash snapping in the air.

Without warning, the car lurched wildly, straightened out for a moment, lurched dizzily again, skidded, with a wild scream of tires, broadside on for a few yards, hit the low grass bank at the side of the road, and then overturned with a tremendous crash.

Mahony, with a sensation of utter helplessness, felt himself shot bodily from his seat and flying through the air. Instinctively he raised his arms to shield his face. With the echoes of the crash ringing in his ears, he landed in a soft hedge, smashed through it, breaking small twigs and branches, and landed with a bump in soft grass on the other side of the hedge.

Shaken and scratched, but comparatively unhurt, he scrambled to his feet. The sound of the pursuer's car was fading into the distance; the wide swathe of light from his headlamps was getting farther and farther away. Ross' wrecked car, its headlights out, and its four wheels sticking ridiculously up into the air, was lying half in the grass and half in the ditch. No sound except a soft hissing came from it.

"Billy!" shouted Mahony anxiously. "Billy!"

There was no answer. Mahony forced his way through the hedge and made for the wrecked car; he had a horrible fear that Billy was pinned beneath it.

"Billy!" he called again, and bent down by the car with the idea of feeling beneath it to find out if Billy was there.

The sound of a low groan a short distance behind him caught his attention, and he turned sharply. The sound had come from the dark bottom of the ditch, and he made his way to the place.

Ross was lying there, doubled up in an unnatural attitude. His breath was coming in short, panting gasps. Obviously the first thing to do was to move him from that ditch bottom, and get him straightened out. Mahony bent over him and lifted him; a sort of shuddering moan came from Ross' lips.

"Sorry," said Mahony.

He laid Ross gently down in the grass at the side of the road. Kneeling beside him in the darkness, he could just see his face, deathly white except for the red smears across it. As he looked, Ross opened his eyes. A slight smile twisted his pale lips.

"Hallo, Terence!" he murmured. "Glad they didn't get you too."

"Lie still," said Mahony gently. "I'll get some help, and we'll soon have you fixed up quite comfortably."

Ross shook his head.

"They've done all the fixing anyone will ever do for me," he whispered. "But I don't care. I'm better out of it."

"Boloney!" said Mahony, assuming a cheerfulness he did not feel. "I'll make you as comfortable as I can, and fetch an ambulance and the police."

"No."

There was a strenuous urgency in Ross' voice. His face had gone a curious grey color. Little beads of perspiration were standing out on his brow and top lip. With one hand he plucked feebly at Mahoney's sleeve.

"No," he gasped painfully. "You're not to tell the police. That bullet only hit the tire; let them think it was an accidental burst. If the police make inquiries, things may come out about me that will make it dreadful for my parents. Don't argue, just listen. Listen! Listen! Listen, I tell you! Listen!"

"All right," said Mahony. "I'm listening."

Ross continued. His voice was a mere feeble whisper.

"Those men in that car are crooks. So am I. I was one of them. Dope and kidnaping are their games. They kidnap people and then dope them. After they've got the habit, they let them go. Then they sell them the stuff . . ."

For a moment he paused, gathering his failing strength.

"They wanted me to help kidnap Elsa. At the Cinema ball. I wouldn't. I couldn't let them do that to Elsa . . . "

STATE URGED TO BE PROUD OF HIGHWAYS

SACRAMENTO. (AP)—A recent inspection of eastern roads made by engineers of the state division of highways is valuable in its revelation of the progress being made in traffic problems, Assistant State Highway Engineer George T. McCoy reported.

The engineers made the inspection in connection with their attendance at the convention of the American Association of State Highway officials in Boston and each wrote a report of his impressions.

While California can be proud of her highway system, McCoy said, nevertheless the concensus of opinion of these men shows the state "does not lead the procession in modernization of highway facilities and much is to be learned from the progressive achievements in other states."

GENERAL CONCLUSION

McCoy said the general conclusion of the group was New York has been more thoroughly educated in the problems of transportation near a large metropolis than the states of the midwest and west. He pointed out the problems of highway transportation and vehicular movement are very similar in New York, Chicago, Los Angeles and San Francisco.

"New York, by its construction of bridges, tunnels, elevated roadways and parkways," he said, "is certainly far ahead of any other city or state visited on the trip, in solving highway transportation problems.

On the entire trip the group reported the ydid not see anything that would approach the asphaltic construction of the west or any concrete roads which were built to better standards than those now being laid in California.

LEAF FROM BOOK

"However, it would seem the people of California can take a leaf from the book of experience of New York, New Jersey and Massachusetts.

"They should give more consideration to the congested areas of the state, solving the problems by the construction of through boulevards with service roads in each side or agreements preventing abutting property from any contact with such speedways except at stipulated intersectional points where the clover leaf type of construction and accelerating entrance lanes would be placed."

TEACHER KILLED ON BRIDLE PATH

PASADENA. (AP)—A moonlight horseback ride near Indio resulted in the death of Miss Barbara Rush, 23, of South Pasadena, daughter of Frank N. Rush, general manager of the Southern California Telephone company, and Mrs. Rush.

Miss Rush's horse slipped on a strip of wet pavement which the bridle trail crossed, and fell upon her. She died two hours later at the Indio hospital.

Miss Rush was a teacher at the Coachella school. She was graduated from Occidental school last June and obtained the school position last fall.

The funeral will be tomorrow morning from the Pasadena Presbyterian church.

Cecelia Telef and Stanley Pearson have been selected to play the feminine and masculine leads, respectively, in the senior class play, "Smilin' Through."

Cecelia will play the part of Kathleen Dungannon, and Stanley will take the part of John Carteret. Other students who will participate are Betty Willits as Moonyeen Clare, Karl Crist as Dr. Owen Harding, Creighton Hunter as Willie Ainley, Dick Gardner as Kenneth Wayne, Ben Blee as Jeremiah Wayne, Betty Carlson as Mary Clare, and Buelah Cairns as Ellen.

This play, selected by Miss Jeanne Gerare, drama instructor, has been chosen because of its marked contrast to the recent production of the drama department, "Campus Quarantine."

The play, "Smilin' Through," a human story of sorrow and tragedy, first became widely known through the movie version, starring Norma Shearer, Leslie Howard, and Fredric Marsh.

HISTORY OF THE MOVIES

"March of the Movies," a film produced by Commodore J. Stuart Blackton, pioneer of the movies, was shown for a small admission fee at Wednesday's assembly. The picture covered moving pictures from man's earliest conception of them to the present development.

Commodore Blackton was the founder of the famous Vitagraph company of America and produced numerous moving pictures. Many of today's and yesterday's film celebrities appeared in this movies review.

In addition a short film, "China, the Beautiful," was shown due to current interest in China.

ART PROJECT

A model living room has been designed, planned, and furnished by the home arts class and their instructor, Miss Tui Woolley. The room represents much work and thought on the part of the class, who selected each piece of furniture. Mr. William Hippard, of Chandler's Furniture store, and Miss Ruth Rowland, home economics instructor, lent valuable assistance to the girls.

The room will be reserved for teachers or for occasional groups of girls wishing to give tea. The room will be under faculty supervision.

Members of the class responsible for the transformation are Ruth Crosby, Claire Cullen, Barbara Faccou, Bettie Timmons, Elizabeth Tipple, Opal Villmar, and Ida Wright.

SLAVE SALE

First year Latin students were sold at auction to other Latin club members last Thursday afternoon.

This proceedure is a semi-annual occurrance. Thirty-nine students were sold as slaves this semester. Rodger Engel, Latin club consul, acted as auctioneer.

Slaves must serve their purchaser and master for one week. School work is an exception to the duties slaves must perform.

Those sold at auction included Jeanne Lawrence, Mary Alice Tillotson, Kay Knudsen, Don Hamaker, Louise Grant, Jane Dale, Douglas May, Audrey Johnson, Carol McCollum, Stanley Beisser, Betty Reid, Daryl Sherfey, Janet Harwood, Jack Miles, Dick Lockett, Pat Flaherty, Frenona Ferguson, Alice McFarland, Willard Keler, Rosemary Pierce, Gertrude Knox, Charlotte McDonald, Frances White, Fern Hill, Katherine Grimes, June Masin, Dixie Lee Higday, Roberta Emmerson, Shirley Wolven, Charline Chambers, Ruth Hawley, Phyllis Wetherell, Don Wilde, Kenneth Goodman, Sylvia Pope, Frances Brando, Doris Walker, Elizabeth Wagner and Vernon Ashly.

FACULTY TEAS

Making use of the newly decorated "model living room," two faculty teas have been given by the foods classes, with the help of Mrs. Myrtle Pearcy, instructor.

First was the tea given Tuesday and attended by 11 faculty members. Those present were Mrs. Edith Thatcher, Miss Vesta K. Nickerson, Miss Mildred Frazier, Miss Thelma Thomas, Miss Lota Blythe, Miss Ruth Rowland, Mrs. Gail Smith, Miss Lulu B. Finley, Mr. Byron Quivey, Mr. Milton Newcomer and Mr. Richard Jarrett.

Following on Friday was a tea for faculty members and the board of education. This tea was specifically for introducing the "model living room." Miss Tui Woolley and Miss Ruth Rowland, faculty members, supervised decorations and serving, respectively.

STUDENT FLYER

John Geddes, 16-year-old student at high school, made his first solo flight last week-end. Having passed the solo test, John will receive his student's license. Then he plans to add 35 hours of flying to his credit in order to obtain a private license.

John first began training when he was 14 years old. He has two months of ground school training and usually takes a flying lesson every Saturday.

Floyd Wright was John's ground school instructor, and taught him charting, Air Commerce rules, and airplane parts. Floyd Wright and Joe Hager were instructors for John's actual flying.

The high school student has 14 hours of flying to his credit, including three hours of stunting. John has placed in amateur flying contests and won first place in spot landings.

Socialists Set Convention Date

LOS ANGELES.—The 1938 state convention of the Socialist party of California will be held in Los Angeles on Feb. 26 and 27, it was announced by John Newton Thurber, state organizer of the party, from headquarters in room 517 Lissner building, here today.

Delegates from party brancnes and locals throughout the state, as well as numerous members-at-large, will assemble at Verband hall, 126 North St. Louis street for the two day convention to discuss matters of concern to the welfare of the Socialist party and of organized and unorganized workers generally in California, Thurber stated.

WITNESSES GRAB CHANCE TO HIT VICE

LOS ANGELES. (AP)—Sitting as a one-man sub-committee of the assembly co-ordinating committee, Speaker William Moseley Jones prepared yesterday to hear voluntary witnesses who have informed him they could give information about Los Angeles vice conditions.

One man who said he was coming up to see Jones notified him by telephone that he would come in a disguise, possibly wearing a beard or goggles or both.

Speaker Jones also received several replies from officials of various cities to whom he had sent lists of places reported to be receiving race track information by wire.

Mayor R. H. Segrell of Culver City wrote as follows:

"Regarding the activities of bookmaking in Culver City, I will state positively there is none. There are, however, I am told, bookmaking plants immediately adjacent to our city boundary in the city of Los Angeles.

Jones received a letter from the city manager of Pasadena urging that the co-ordinating committee recommend stricter legislation against bookmaking.

GREYHOUND APPLIES FOR FRANCHISE

EL CENTRO. (AP)—As an aftermath of a railroad commission hearing held here, the Pacific Greyhound lines has applied for an operating certificate for bus operation between Brawley and Niland, via Calipatria.

At the hearing the Southern Pacific sought authority to discontinue daylight motor cars between Niland and Calexico.

This was revealed by Robert Hays, secretary of the local chamber of commerce. Hays stated that the Greyhound application has been set for an early hearing by the commission.

No opposition to the bus application is anticipated, as an agreement was reached by the railroad and Imperial valley representatives at the hearing, to substitute bus service for the more expensive motor cars. The Pacific Greyhound already holds operating rights between Calexico, El Centro and Brawley, and the present proceeding is therefore to secure railroad commission sanction to extend the bus service from Brawley to Niland.

It was agreed with the railroad company, and incorporated in the commission's order, that adequate equipment should be maintained and operated to handle passengers, express, mail and baggage, and that the schedule should be arranged to make suitable connections with main line transcontinental trains at Niland.

GADGET FOR PALOMAR READIED

PITTSBURGH. (AP)—The world's largest bearing, designed to carry the million-pound load of the giant telescope atop Mt. Palomar, Calif., is being completed in the East Pittsburgh plant of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company.

Astronomers hope to peer 1,000,000,000 light years into space when the instrument is finally set up for the California Institute of Technology, probably in 1940.

The great bearing weighs 317,000 pounds, but so precise are calculations that final machining of its surface will bring it within five-thousands of an inch of specifications.

Because of its size the bearing had to be made in three sections so that it could be shipped here in flat cars from the Westinghouse turbine division at South Philadelphia where it was fabricated and partially machined.

The journal bearing now looks like a giant steel washer from which a large "U" has been cut as it lies on a specially constructed boring mill. It is 43 feet across and 53 inches thick and, engineers say, is eight times larger than the present record holder, the one supporting the 100-inch mirror of the Mt. Wilson telescope.

LEASERS DRIVE NEW DRIFTS

WINNEMUCCA, Nev. (AP)—Lee Smith and A. H. Leach, who are among several leasers at work in the Jungo Gold Star Mines company property in the Haystack district, have been driving a drift west from the 100-foot level to intersect a number of small veins which carry high values on the surface.

The other partners, Skicklig and Taylor, are crosscutting east from the same level to contact an ingenious dike toward which all of the veins reportedly are dipping.

Charles Thompson and Ray Garner are operating a lease from the surface and have recently shipped a carload of material that is expected to average about $100 a ton.

ONE OF TWENTY WPA JOBS CLICK

WASHINGTON. (AP) — Works Progress administration officials estimate that odds against ultimate construction of a work relief project after being classed as "eligible" were about 20 to one.

"There are only sufficient funds for about one project out of every 20 approved," said one official who estimated about one-third of the $1,500,000,000 work relief appropriation remained.

Another official explained that WPA's recent activity in approving hundreds of large and small projects throughout the country was merely for the purpose of "filling our reservoir of projects."

NOTED SINGER INTERVIEWED

By DONALD BUTTON

Marian Anderson speaking—

"Gershwin? Oh, I like Gershwin, but I haven't heard nearly enough of his music yet."

"I have yet to see 'Porgy and Bess.' Two of my friends, Anne Miller and Todd Duncan, have the principal parts, too."

Between autographing for high-schoolers, meeting Musical Arts club members, and trying to get off for Los Angeles after her concert at the high school the noted contralto rambled on in answer to questions.

Asked about her family and home, Miss Anderson spoke of her mother, two younger sisters in Philadelphia, said the younger of the sisters had a fine contralto voice and was now singing lullabyes to a baby of her own.

"As for me," and she shrugged her shoulders, "I've had no home the past four years. Some of my trunks are in Paris, the rest in New York. I seem to live on trains, and I've only been at home three and a half weeks in those four years."

"I should like to do just one opera—'Carmen'."

Another gracious fluttering of autographs and Kosti Vehanen (her accompanist) insisted upon departure. Marian Anderson swept off.

A London studio is making pictures "with a moral" intended for showing in English churches wired for talkies.

TUBERCULOSIS SEALS LISTED

Finishing touches have been added to some twelve thousand government post cards, addressed to people who have not yet responded to the Christmas Seal letters mailed by the Orange County Tuberculosis & Health Association, Ltd., at Thanksgiving time.

Across the top and bottom of the card are strips of five Christmas Seals. The message says: "Dear Friend:—We are asking you to read between these lines of Christmas Seals hoping you will be reminded of something probably planned but forgotten."

Those who would like to make a belated contribution or return of the seals may do so by contacting the association at office headquarters, 112 West Fifth Street, Santa Ana—phone 4797 or by contacting one of the twenty Christmas Seal chairmen in the county.

In Santa Ana, 7038 letters were mailed, 5625 have been heard from, leaving 3630 letters for which no reply has been made. $2760.23 has been received and $739.77 is needed to reach a goal of $3500 for this district.

Louis XIV spent more than $40,000,000 on the royal gardens of Versailles.

CUT IN TRAFFIC TOLL SOUGHT

Orange county's traffic fatality picture is as spotty as business record before, during and after the depression.

In 1937 the county had 77 traffic deaths. It also had 77 deaths in 1928.

In 1936 there were 79 deaths; but the worst year was 1932, when 86 persons lost their lives on the streets and highways. Best year in the nine-year period was 1930, when only 56 lost their lives, apparently as the result of a spirited campaign following distastrous 1929.

Other years:

In 1931, 78 deaths; 1933, 58 deaths; 1934, 57 deaths; 1935, 62 deaths.

Orange was one of the 32 out of the state's 58 counties which managed to reduce the number of its traffic fatalities during 1937, Director Ray Ingels of the state department of motor vehicles said today.

In Santa Ana and the county at large the Elks club, American Legion and many other civic groups were joining this week with state officials and local law enforcement bodies in a concerted drive to cut the toll down.

In the state as a whole 3149 persons died in traffic. Mono county was lowest, with only one death; Los Angeles was highest, with 1001.

SPEED FINES

Two speeders paid more than 19 overtime parkers in Santa Ana city court yesterday as Judge J. G. Mitchell collected $15 from David C. Caldwell, East Montebello, and $8 from Clifford Kellum, Santa Ana, on speeding counts. Parking tickets were cleared at $1 each.

180-POUND PROBLEM

PHILADELPHIA. (AP)— A half-pound of hamburger solved a 180-pound problem. Cheltenham township police used the meat to lure a great Dane from a parked automobile. The car owner, a woman, said she didn't know where the dog came from.

GIRL, 3, KEPT IGNORANT OF DAD'S PLIGHT

CLEVELAND. (AP)—To a little girl in Cleveland, yesterday was just another day full of the things that keep busy the hands of a three-year-old.

Helen Wright did not know a California jury had ruled her father was insane when he shot and killed her mother last November; did not know Paul A. Wright had been on trial for his life; nor, apparently, that her mother was gone.

What wonder she has had at the absence of her mother and father has been minimized by her uncle, Dr. Herbert B. Wright, to whose home she was brought a few weeks after the killing.

A friend said Dr. and Mrs. Wright have tried to keep from the child all outside contacts that might involve her further in the tragedy. This friend added she has not asked for her father or mother since the first week she was brought here by her grandfather, Dr. J. J. Wright.

The Cleveland surgeon has three other children, one the same age as Helen.

COUNTY HOUSING PROBLEM GROWS ACUTE

THE JOURNAL TO EXPOSE CONDITIONS

More Than Ten Per Cent In Need

By BOB GUILD

An investigator for The Journal found a Merican laborer's camp with five bathtubs for 128 "homes" . . . a family of eight living in a three room shack without windows . . . hogs, chickens and humans living in the same hovels . . . rickets, tuberculosis and disease carrying off scores of babies every year.

BOB GUILD

Sharecroppers, forever in debt to the storekeeper and the rancher.

Sixteen thousand submarginal folk existing in squalor and unsanitary conditions.

JOURNAL WILL REPORT

Feeling that the Wagner-Steagall model housing act provides the answer to these conditions in Orange county, The Journal next week will begin a series of articles in fact and picture, showing conditions in this county's slums as they exist today.

Mrs. Jack Vallely told the Ebell club this week "that 500,000 persons alone in New York state are desperately in need of adequate housing."

That is 7 per cent of the population.

MORE THAN 10 PER CENT

In Orange county, with a population of 140,000, there are 16,000 such people—more than 10 per cent—adequate proof of the fact the rural county is as much in need of the aid extended by the model housing bill as the metropolitan county.

This series of stories, following an earlier series which explained the provisions and possibilities of the bill, will be run in The Journal on the eve of the special session in Sacramento, at which passage of an enabling act under the Wagner-Steagall bill has been promised by the governor.

WHEELS IN MOTION

The wheels are in motion. State Senator Harry Westover, public spirited citizens the county over, are joining in the battle to secure Orange county's share of the $526,000,000 the federal government is paying for the eradication of slums and improvement of submarginal living conditions.

Facts and pictures, beginning next Monday, will tell you the story of what sort of problem Orange county is facing—and how it can be solved.

4-H MEMBERS OUTLINE TOUR

Orange County 4-H members are planning their first tour of the year for Saturday, according to Rose E. Crane, assistant farm advisor. An interesting and educational trip is planned.

The group will leave Olive at 7:30 a. m. and will proceed in caravan formation to Fontana, where several educational visits will be made, after which the group will tour to Big Pines for snow sports.

At Fontana, a visit will be made to the U. S. Rabbit Experiment Station, where the experiments in rabbit feeding and management will be explained by Dr. George Templeton, director, and to the Fontana Cooperative Feed Mill, where the mixing of livestock feeds will be demonstrated. One of the successful poultry plants of the Fontana district will also be visited.

The group will spend the afternoon at Big Pines.

I Just Found Out

—By— MILLARD BROWNE

Thar's Gold

Don't stampede, gentlemen. But there's gold in them thar hills. There also is silver, lead, zinc, copper, antimony, tin, asbestos, coal, mercury and precious clay. The gold rush is over, but mining still is a half-million-dollars-a-year industry in Orange county.

* * *

To those not "in the know," mining is an obscure business, though its background in this county has a touch of the same glamor that made the mother lode country famous.

* * *

Up in Silverado canyon, for instance, they once had a stampede, even ran a stage line from Los Angeles, built up a mining village. The gold and silver ore petered out, though, and the boom town folded.

* * *

The county now has less than a dozen producing mines, yet nearly 10,000 county residents are involved, either financially or physically, in mining deals, majority of which are investments outside the county.

* * *

Biggest piece of the county's annual $500,000 production of minerals (U. S. census figures) is from gold and silver ore, mostly coming from a huge vein that runs northwest just inside the county's eastern boundary.

* * *

Rumors of developments — which eventually filter to N. H. Hilton's assaying office on North Main street, where majority of the county's miners bring samples—peg this year as perhaps the biggest in local mining history.

* * *

That's because nearly all producing mines in the "back country" will be opened when winter rains were over.

* * *

Biggest mine in the county is the "Blue Light" at Silverado, washed out last year but nearly ready for operation now. With a $100,000 plant, the Blue Light is big business, includes six levels, and more than a mile of straight underground workings. More than $1,000,000 in bullion has been taken from it.

* * *

The Blue Light is owned by a bunch of fairly well-to-do Orange county men who work it for awhile, then close it up tight, go off on hunting and fishing trips, finally get around to opening it again—which they are scheduled to do in the next few weeks.

* * *

Most exciting history, though, is that of the Old Dominion mine, located at the tip of the divide just off the Ortega highway. It's been shut down for a long time, now is being reopened with a brand new smelter.

* * *

Mine used to be worked by a bunch of devil-may-care prospectors who earned a little money, then closed the mine, went away to celebrate, finally resumed work when their money was gone.

* * *

But in 1885 the sheriff moved in, closed it down because it was on railroad land. The miners finally sneaked back, built a small smelter, fueled it with apricot pits, and "bootlegged" ore. It was purchased 10 years ago from Southern Pacific, now is being run by Herman Langstaff, Elsinore, who claims he can get ore that assays at $65 a ton from a vein 18 feet wide.

* * *

All ore along the county's main vein produces smatterings of several different metals, though silver in most cases is the big number. Here's the way Hilton assayed ordinary Old Dominion ore (worth $21.50 a ton): .08 ounces of gold, 19.30 ounces of silver; 4.44 per cent lead, 2.3 per cent zinc, 1.15 per cent copper, and .9 per cent antimony. And they all are being commercially reclaimed.

* * *

Though the precious metals grab a lion's share of the glamor, two of the county's most profitable mining industries are clay mines. One is at San Juan Capistrano, ships three or four carloads of fire clay every day. Others are in the Trabuco district, where three or four different outfits are producing fair quantities of Kaolin clay, used for fancy pottery.

* * *

Only mine concentrating on tin production is Cromer Tin company, located near Trabuco. It's shut down now, but buildings are being rebuilt, and new machinery is expected to go in. Though there's been some official pooh-poohing of the mine's possibilities, Hilton claims the basic ore, assaying at one and one-half per cent tin, is the same as that being produced in Peru.

* * *

Mercury's another metal that once was, but no longer is produced here. Trouble was that mercury is formed in "lenses," and they're too far apart. One company took $30,000 worth from one lens, spent the $30,000 looking for another one. Rich mercury deposits still are believed lurking 200 or 300 feet under someone's orange grove in the Red Hill district, and other mercury lenses have been reported near Laguna.

* * *

Orange county's prospectors aren't the traditional grizzled hermits. A few such characters turn up with trembling hands, offer chunks of ore to assayers for testing, but majority of customers at Hilton's office are those with financial interests in mining who prospect as a hobby.

* * *

They'll go on trips to Arizona, Nevada, even into Oregon and Mexico, in search of gold. When they make a small strike, they're just as thrilled as the typical professional—and just as secretive about where it came from.

* * *

During every depression, scores of people go to the mountains, look for gold or pan in streams along known ore veins. Two brothers in Lucas canyon, near San Juan Capistrano, have been panning nearly every night, pick up from $15 to $30 worth of gold a month.

* * *

Hilton's job as assayer and metallurgical engineer is to tell what ore's worth, how much of each kind of metal it contains, and to work out a program for recovering it. Richest ore found in Orange county is some assaying at $200 a ton from the Blue Light.

* * *

A Santa Ana man brought in the $80,000 ore, yet he never made a dollar from it. The stuff came from Mexico, and he didn't dare go get it, since a number of his friends had mysteriously disappeared when they tried to bring gold out of the same country.

* * *

Another time a Mexican brought in some black sand, left it to be assayed, said he'd be back next day for the report. Hilton's never seen him since, though the rock was worth $11,000 a ton.

* * *

Hilton still can't see why someone doesn't resume coal diggings in the two abandoned shafts near Trabuco.

PARK STRIP TREES GIVEN FREE BY CITY

By GEORGE COVERDALE

The city of Santa Ana will furnish trees free of charge for the parking strip in front of your house, including the labor involved in planting.

During the past seven years 10,000 plants have been set out in parkings throughout the city, making a total of 45,000 trees growing between the streets and sidewalks of this community.

Residents are required by city ordinance to notify the park department whenever they plan to alter their parkings in any manner, whether it is the removal of a three or the addition of others, according to Park Supt. Dale Griggs.

UNIFORMITY STRESSED

"We make this request for several reasons," Griggs continued. "For one thing we want new plantings to be uniform. Furthermore, by consulting us first home owners won't make the mistake of planting trees too large for the parkway."

Again, some varieties will not grow in certain sections of the city the park department learns from observation over a period of years. A tree in the wrong soil is eventually doomed.

On Third street, between Artesia and Ross streets, for example there are seven different types of soils. Through experimentation the park department has finally found a tree that will grow anywhere in that particular neighborhood. That three is the carob.

POPULAR PLANTS

Griggs believes the most popular plants in Santa Ana include the cocos palm, the carob, the European sycamore, Carolina cherry, flowering eucalyptus and Virginia oaks.

The city has displaced 75 trees from parkings this year. During 1934 five hundred were taken out, the larger percentage being diseased.

"We are declaring open season on the removal of fruit trees from parkings," Griggs related, "owing to their impracticability."

ADVICE GIVEN

Home builders are urged by Griggs to note three locations in the parkings to their lots before laying foundations.

Later removal of a beautiful tree for a driveway can usually be eliminated by consciously placing the building in the proper location, he says.

In some communities, including Beverly Hills, property owners are not permitted to cut down healthy trees for driveways.

Santa Ana places no restrictions on tree planting or removal between the public sidewalks and residences.

Junior College Editors Win Top Honors

Latest All-American editorial honors for college publications are shared by no less an educational institution than Santa Ana's own junior college. The latest honors only go to boost the total of a long list of prizes awarded the juniors during the past two years. The top certificates are the recent awards in national competition during 1937. At the left is Bob Swanson, editor of the prize-winning issue. Ed Velarde (below) is present editor of the newspaper staff. Tay Riggs (top right) edited the All-American year book, while Jack Gardner (below) present editor aspires to equal the record.

Receipt of the college year book and newspaper of national honor diplomas from the University of Minnesota school of journalism gave Junior College definite assurance of two all-American publications on its campus. Contests entered by the local jaysee were sponsored by the National Scholastic Press association.

Del Ano, the campus annual which won the high honors for the first time was edited by Tay Riggs who enrolled at the local campus from Franklin, Ill. Jack Gardner, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Gardner of 2026 North Main street, has been named editor of the 1938 yearbook and will endeavor to duplicate the award in June with another outstanding issue, according to D. K. Hammond, junior college director.

The all-American award given El Don, Jaysee newspaper, is the fourth similar honor to be accorded the publication in recent years. During the past two years the paper has also won numerous other state and national honors. Bob Swanson and Vic Rowland, now on The Journal staff, edited the weekly during the last year.

Ed Velarde is the present editor of the newspaper.

Additional recognition is accorded El Don in the current issue of Scholastic Press Review, published in New York City by Columbia university, which prints four editorials written by Rowland and Swanson. Subjects treated by the jaysee editors in the nationally distributed magazine are related to teachers' salaries, cooperation on the campus, skilled workers, and the good work being done by the junior colleges of the country.

Faculty advisers for Del Ano include George B. Holmes, business; Miss Frances Egge, art; Mrs. Eleanor Northcross, literary. John H. McCoy heads the college journalism department and directs El Don activities. Thomas E. Williams serves as printing adviser for both campus publications.

Editors and reporters on the present staff of El Don are enrolled from the following high schools:

Santa Ana: Velarde; Bob Warren, circulation; Ruth Liggett, advertising; Gardner, Bob Prescott, Ines Granados, Marvin Hinton, Richard Wright, Fred Stearns, Carroll Richardson, Gerry Peck, Mary Mulhall, Gloria Kirchner, Betty Frye.

Tustin: Mary Knoche, society editor; Edwin Cox, John Newcom.

Garden Grove: Larry Trickey, sport editor; Eleanor Brady, Ruth Lehnhardt.

Orange: Oscar Lieffers, feature editor; David Welsh, advertising; Delpha Wollert, Tom Powell, Fred Shaw.

Huntington Park: Ruth Jump.

Dallas, Texas: Harold Barrett, Otto Huber.

Santa Ana high school singers and drama students entertained Lions club members yesterday afternoon.

Herbert Bickel directed 18 girls, members of the school's 100-voice girls' glee club, in several musical selections. Margaret Jayberg played a violin solo, accompanied by Verna May Osborn.

"Psyching Mabel' 'was the title of a one-act play presented by Betty Willits, Richard Gardner and Bette Carlson. Homer Chaney was program chairman.

Half Hundred Present At A.A.U.W.

"The Brighter Side of Europe" was described last night for members of the Orange County American association of University Women, by Dr. Earl Cranston of Redlands university as chief speaker for the annual international relations dinner of the group.

Beginning with a dinner served at 6 o'clock by the St. Elizabeth's guild, 53 members of the group met in the Episcopal Church of the Messiah. Colorful flags of all nations were used as decorations on the dinner tables and across the curtains of the stage, all arranged by Miss Lillian Dickson, hospitality chairman.

Miss Mabel Whiting presided over the dinner and the business session which followed, and introduced Miss Katheryn Budd, music chairman, who announced the musical program for the evening. A trio, composed of Virginia Trevorrow, soprano, Rose Marie Flint, violinist, and Mary Bruner Ferrey, pianist, was dressed in Yugoslavian costumes to play a group of unusual folk songs of the country. They completed their delightful selections with the presentation of the Yugoslavian national anthem, which is in four parts to represent the four districts of the country.

Mrs. John Tessmann, as international relations chairman, explained that one of the purposes of the organization is to promote understanding and good will among the nations. She also introduced Dr. Cranston as speaker for the evening.

Dr. Cranston drew upon his own travels in Europe for information and described the universal desire for peace in Europe despite the heavy armament campaigns. He took first the dictator countries and explained the dissatisfaction appearing there, but reported a great hope for the present movement in Russia.

The Scandinavian countries impressed him as being outstanding in their modern development, and he found England to be the veritable center of democracy. Concluding his talk, Dr. Cranston pointed out that cooperation between democracies would prevent another war.

Announcement was made of the regional conference to be held in Hollywood on Saturday, which will be attended by Miss Mabel Whiting, Mrs. Edith Thatcher and Mrs. Robert Horn. Tickets were also distributed for the annual junior college scholarship benefit to be held Saturday afternoon, March 26.

Mary Stoddard

Cupid Flits Away From the Over-Zealous Romance Seekers Among the Fair Sex

When a young woman deliberately fares forth to snare a man in matrimony, all too often she finds herself walking most of the way alone on Life's broad highway! Why? Because, as I have said here several times before, men are as skittish as mice. If you set eyes on them, they scamper to a safe distance. If you pay little attention to them, they will come to play on your doorstep.

I'm speaking of the men good girls wish to marry. Men who appreciate a nice wife and an attractive home. They not only wish to do their own choosing in the matrimonial game, but they will run away like mice if even a nice, attractive girl chases them. This, I believe, is the trouble the young divorcee is facing who makes the following confession:

Dear Miss Stoddard: Please may I unburden my problem before you and your readers? I am a young divorcee of 23. Ever since I left my ex-husband I have had the desire to settle down again.

I have attended dances and other amusements for the past four years—but haven't been able to get proposals from men that I wanted to have proposals from. Seems the fellows will pay me a lot of attention at first, then the second or third time they start to wander—and finally wander away for god. If I pass them, they politely say, "Hello," and then go about their business.

I never speak of the past and am a good listener and have been complimented on my gayety. It's the same when I invite any of them to my home. The third or fourth time seems to be the limit.

Before I got married I was considered popular and had many opportunities to marry. I'll admit the first year of my single life, after my divorce, I made no headway at all, but I have tried to improve always and find quite a difference now, but I'm still single.

Many of my friends say that I don't have enough self-confidence and that I have every reason in the world to have it. But I believe there is such a thing as having too much. I wish I knew. You can't say that I'm too choosy, as I've met quite a few men that I really would like to have marry. Some girls are lucky. They marry shortly after their divorce and here it has been four years and I'm still looking and waiting. This may seem foolish to you, but I feel, oh, so bad about it. I never was good at expressing myself, but I hope you will understand and I will appreciate and follow any advice you have to offer. Thanks.

JUST WAITING.

I do know this one thing. Men, young, old, good, bad, indifferent, wealthy or poor, appreciate the friendship of a good woman. If you can be a good friend to a man you are interested in, you will not lose that friendship and many friendships have ripened into love. At one time I heard a brilliant, attractive man say, "My wife is the best friend I have in this world."

Another thing don't affect a forced gayety. It will get on the average man's nerves. You are thinking too much of yourself and the fact that you want to remarry. Forget it. Then when you are truly yourself, your thought entirely free of trying to catch a husband, out of a clear sky you no doubt will meet the man who will love you for what you really are and not what you are trying to be.

TATTLERS FORM PARTY TO SEE PLAY

Tavern Tattler members at Santa Ana Junior college formed a party last night to see the stage play "You Can't Take It With You" at the Biltmore theater.

Those in the literary club who enjoyed the production included Miss Marjorie Vollmer, Miss Ruth Budd, Miss Catherine Cooper, Stanley Slaback, Miss June Holman, Miss Eleanor Brady, Miss Jean Mulbar, Miss Marjorie Button, Miss Elizabeth Robinson, Miss Delpha Wollert, Herschel Albrechte, Roy Potter and Donn Hart. Ernest Crozier Phillips accompanied the group.

COPETTES HAVE PARTY AT BOYD HOME

Gathering in the home of Mrs. George Boyd, 701 Halladay street, on Wednesday evening, members of the Copettes enjoyed a pleasant evening party, for which Mrs. Richard M. Bradley assisted Mrs. Boyd as co-hostess.

Gay red and white decorations formed a Valentine motif, with each table centered with red sweet peas. Several hands of bridge were played during the evening, concluding with the awarding of table prizes to Mrs. Jerome Stephenson, Mrs. Floyd W. Howard, Mrs. J. W. Foster, and Mrs. J. F. McWilliams.

When prizes were awarded, an especially lovely gift was presented to Mrs. Bradley as a layette gift. The Copettes will meet in the home of Mrs. Harry Fink on March 9, when Mrs. Paul Cozad will be co-hostess.

Included in the group were Mrs. J. F. McWilliams, Mrs. J. W. Foster, Mrs. Francis Norton, Mrs. W. F. Nielson, Mrs. F. L. Grouard, Mrs. Floyd W. Howard, Mrs. Harry Fink, Mrs. B. A. Hershey, Mrs. W. B. Moreland, Mrs. R. R. Russick, Mrs. Jerome Stephenson, Mrs. Chester Gross, Mrs. Thomas Kinney, Mrs. Paul N. Cozad, and the two hostesses.

Hollywood Sights and Sounds

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Barring an extra's complete oblivion, the greatest anonymity in Hollywood is enjoyed by the girl who plays "second leads."

She can be well-known indeed, she can be beautiful and a fine actress, she can be as agreeable and pleasant and surprising as ice water at a cocktail bar, but in the Hollywood spotlight she just isn't.

Why this should be isn't clear, unless you fall back on the obvious, which isn't necessarily true. As a second lead, she's always eclipsed by the greater glitter of the star.

Some of us were ruminating on this circumstance the other day, and the name of Margaret Lindsay arose as the perfect example.

SAME OLD STORY

That's been the "angle" on Margaret for five years now—ever since she fooled her way into the all-English cast of "Cavalcade." For about two years the publicity men at Warner's have been doing their best to change that angle—you can't blame Margaret for wearying of it—but they've had no luck. Often, they themselves gave up and start their stories with: "When Margaret Kies of Dubuque, Iowa, was unable to crash pictures as an American," etc.

Other "angles" that have found their way into print on the Lindsay girl have been few. It has been dutifully recorded that she and Janet Gaynor are good friends, that she attended the American Academy of Dramatic Art in New York city, that she sculptures a little, that she is fond of vacations in Mexico, adores Hawaii, and so on. Once her adoration reached the point where she planned to buy an island, but to date there's no deed of transfer recorded. She dresses smartly, is a favorite companion of some of the colony's most eligible young men; she makes a nice salary, puts enough of it away, and keeps on playing second leads with an occasional first lead in second-string pictures.

Theater Guild Play Slated

LAGUNA BEACH.—On Feb. 26 at 8:30 p. m. the Theater Guild will present "Men Must Fight," a dramatic war-time story, directed by Marjorie Williamson.

The cast includes such well known artists as David Paul, Sallie Amour and John Evans with able supporting characters.

In South Carolina the law does not allow divorce for any cause.

TAYLOR FILM AT BROADWAY

The first story of English undergraduate life to be filmed in England with a cast of American stars sent abroad to act in authentic locales comes to the Broadway theater today with the showing of "A Yank at Oxford," with Robert Taylor playing the title role and with such American and English favorites as Lionel Barrymore, Maureen O'Sullivan, Vivien Leigh, Edmund Gwenn and Griffith Jones filling important supporting roles.

Taylor as the American college boy who wins a scholarship to Oxford and becomes stroke of the Oxford crew, is said to eclipse anything he has done before in the new role of the Yank who has to face customs and traditions he has never known at home and who emerges triumphant and with a new understanding of the sympathy and comradeship existing between the two English speaking nations.

Aside from presenting a story replete with excitement, humor, thrills and romance, "A Yank at Oxford" offers the American filmgoer an unusual insight into the traditions and colorful life of the English undergraduate. The plot centers around the romance between Taylor and Miss O'Sullivan and the feud Taylor has with her brother, a rival undergraduate.

The second attraction on the Broadway program is "Love on a Budget," latest and most entertaining of the popular Jones family series. The cast includes Jed Prouty, Shirley Deane, Spring Byington, Russell Gleason, Kenneth Howell, George Ernst, June Carlson and others. Possessed of homely qualities, with a decided touch of the fireside and domesticity, plus a wealth of wholesome humor, the picture has that down to earth quality which appeals to everyone. The story deals mainly with the affairs of a newly married young couple who have economic troubles resulting from buying things on the installment plan.

COURT HALTS MILK BOOST

LOS ANGELES. (AP)—The recent order of the state department of agriculture increasing the price of milk sold at retail stores and decreasing it to producers was suspended temporarily by a court injunction today.

Superior Judge Emmet H. Wilson yesterday granted a temporary restraining order, pending trial of a suit brought by 84 milk producers, distributors and retailers which challenged constitutionality of the state act which the milk prices were fixed effective last Feb. 1.

The retail store price was increased from 10 to 11 cents a quart and 35 to 38 cents a gallon.

Two Mesans Attend Club Meeting

COSTA MESA. — Mrs. A. R. Mitchell and Mrs. J. H. Andrews attended a meeting of the Nimble Thimble Quilting club recently in the home of Mrs. Paul Brown, Lynwood.

The club, which was organized in Costa Mesa six years ago, still comprises the same members, many of whom have moved to adjacent towns. Meetings have been held regularly over the six-year period.

Thief Steals $60,000 in Bonds

NEW YORK. (AP) — Detectives had only a sketchy description of "a stranger" to help them today in a search for a thief who snatched a brief case containing $60,000 worth of securities from a table in a Wall Street broker's office.

The brief case was taken yesterday while Richard Deegan, 28-year-old broker's messenger, turned from the table to hand a batch of securities to the cashier at the T. L. Watson & Co. office.

ANZA PARK SOON TO BE REALITY

EL CENTRO. (AP)—Anza State park, combining close to a million acres of highly scenic desert, foothill land and mountains, soon will be a reality.

The California State Park commission last week voted unanimously to acquire from the government unoccupied lands in western Imperial county and eastern San Diego county. The lands begin approximately 25 miles west of this city and Painted Canyon, in the Coyote mountains and extending west of Mt. Laguna and to Cupamaca lake.

Following correspondence with valley officials in 1928, Frederick Law Olmsted, internationally known park authority, who was commissioned by the state to plan it's park system network, recommended the inclusion in the California park plan of the Vallecito and Carrizo valleys and the Carrizo or Coyote, Fish creek and Pinion mountains, and the terrain adjacent and surrounding.

The northern boundary of the enlarged desert park will be the Riverside county line, north of Borego valley, which is included. The eastern boundary will be the east line of Coyote mountain, but further north, in the vicinity of Kane springs, the park boundary widens and extends to the shore of Salton Sea at Sandy Beach.

The south boundary of the Greater Anza unit of the park system will run along in close proximity to highway No. 80, from Coyote Wells to Jacumba. The western line comes close to McCain valley, Mt. Laguna recreational area, and Cuyamaca State park, the latter already in the system.

Establishment of this, the largest of California's parks, is expected by chamber of commerce officials and hotel men and is expected to draw many thousands of additional visitors to the desert area annually.

The Imperial valley entrances to the park will be west of Kane springs, west of Westmoreland, west of Brawley, west of Imperial, and through the southeast or El Centro gateway at or near Coyote Wells, or Ocotillo, on highway U. S. No. 80.

The new park area is traversed by the Imperial highway, which follows generally the route of the old Butterfield stage line and the Emigrant Trail of the gold-rush days. Included in the park area are such scenic spots on the desert as Carrizo gorge, Canebrake canyon, the old Butterfield stage station, Earthquake valley, Agua Caliente Springs, Mountain Palm springs, Painted gorge, In-Ko-pah gorge, Sweeney pass, which gives an incomparable panorama of multi-colored desert mountains, the Puerta of San Felipe, famous narrow canyon which was the scene of many stage coach holdups, and many other scenic and historic spots. The new Cuyamaca to Mt. Laguna highway is also within the new park.

Orchids Permissible On Puerto Rican Budget

The belles of San Juan can more readily get the expensive flower from their beaux because the flower grows more hardy in their island country than in the United States where they must be carefully nutured. More than 100 orchids have bloomed in three years on the above 8-year-old plant on a San Juan estate.

GAMBLERS FACE JAIL TERMS

NEW YORK. (AP)—William J. Graham and James C. McKay, prominent Reno gamblers, today were sentenced to nine years imprisonment following conviction of mail fraud and conspiracy in a $2,500,000 nationwide swindling ring.

Graham and McKay each were fined $11,000.

The two gamblers each were sentenced to serve five years on the first count in the mail fraud indictment, one year on the second, and one year on the third. In addition, each received two years on the conspiracy charge, the sentences to run consecutively.

PEARLS FOR LUCK

PARIS. (AP)—Pearls make some striking new charms for good luck bracelets. They form tiny men, one pearl being used for a head, two for an arm, three for a leg. A large pearl makes the torso, and green jade a Turkish-looking belt.

WHO'LL PAY THE WAR COSTS?

County Auditor W. T. Lambert and Purchasing Agent Eugene Fenelon, their "typewriter war" still in the courts, were wondering today who is going to pay the bill.

They may have to pay for special lawyers themselves.

Their action, arising from a suit by Lambert to force Fenelon to buy an L. C. Smith typewriter for the auditor's office, is now in the fourth district court of appeal, where arguments were heard last year. A decision is expected soon.

The appeal was from a ruling by Superior Judge G. K. Scovel, who said Fenelon could not be guided by a so-called "purchasing policy" of the board of supervisors, under which Fenelon had been instructed to rotate typewriter business, which Supervisor N. E. West charged went principally to the R. A. Tiernan Typewriter company, managed by Bob Fernandez, political enemy of West.

Lambert won here, but Fenelon appealed on advice of the board of supervisors. But the matter of paying the bill for counsel in the long case will come up soon.

Dist. Atty. W. F. Menton indicated today he was doubtful whether the attorneys' fees would be a legal charge against the county, since it was a controversy between two officials. Menton disqualified himself as attorney for either contestant because they both had the right to his services as the county's chief legal advisor.

Fenelon was represented by B. Z. McKinney, often hired as special counsel by the supervisors, and Lambert was represented by Lew Blodget. Neither has turned in a bill as yet. What will happen when they do is still a question and may affect Lambert's and Fenelon's respective pocketbooks.

OLYMPIAD STAMPS

PANAMA CITY. — A series of five different stamps will be issued sometime in February to commemorate the fourth Central American and Carribean Olympiad, it was disclosed by the Panamaian bureau of airmail.

MATTOON QUITS UNDER FIRE

LOS ANGELES. (AP)—Everett W. Mattoon, county counsel for the last 12 years, resigned his office yesterday in the face of a promised grand jury investigation of his arrest at Santa Monica last Saturday night after he had been involved in an automobile accident.

His action followed an announcement by Roger Jessup, chairman of the board of supervisors, that he would demand Mattoon's resignation unless it was submitted voluntarily.

Robert H. McCurdy, foreman of the couny grand jury, said he would ask the jury to conduct an exhaustive investigation of the matter.

MORE SHIPYARD FUNDS ASKED

WASHINGTON. (AP)—The navy's chief constructor told the house naval committee yesterday additional facilities would have to be provided at every navy yard to permit expeditious construction of the proposed $800,000,000 naval expansion program.

Rear Admiral William G. Dubose explained the facilities needed would include new ways and other equipment. He urged the bill be amended to give the department authority to put the yards in shape to handle the work.

Representative McGrath (D., Cal.) asked if Dubose would recommend the government provide funds to improve private ship yards at the same time because the bill stipulates that half of the proposed 47 warships and 22 auxiliary vessels be built in navy yards and the remainder in private yards.

The admiral said he would leave that question to congress but said his amendment was broad enough to cover both types of yards.

Paulette May Get Scarlet Role Yet

HOLLYWOOD. (AP) — Paulette Goddard donned 19th century costume today for a camera test in the role of Scarlett O'Hara, heroine of "Gone With the Wind."

Gordon Oliver was assigned to play Ashley, and Marsha Hunt was Melanie in a group scene.

So far, Selznick International studio has no candidate for the leading male role, Rhett Butler, though it tried for a time to borrow Clark Gable from M-G-M.

KROCK EXPECTS LUCKY YEAR

"I feel that this is my lucky year. Some people say that 13 is an unlucky number, but that numeral marks the number of years that I have had my Red and White store right here in this same location," said George W. Krock, proprietor of the market at 1139 West Fourth street. Krock is a charter member of the Red and White organization here in Santa Ana, is a home town boy, having gone to Santa Ana public schools.

One of the features that makes his market so popular in the community, according to Krock, is that he is assisted in the management of the store by Mrs. Krock and their two daughters Justine and Phyllis.

"They are a big help here, not only to me, but to our customers in giving menu suggestions," Krock said.

The market features a complete stock of fancy and staple groceries, a meat department, stocked at all times with choice cuts of meats, an air conditioned fresh fruit and vegetable section and a quick, courteous delivery service.

"Speaking of luck, one of my luckiest days was when I joined the Red and White organization. Through my association with it I have been able to make all kinds of saving and learn much about general marketing conditions, the benefits of which I am able to pass along to my customers," Krock added.

"THE HORSE IS NOT JUDGED OF BY THE SADDLE"
—AN OLD PROVERB

Experts who choose the coffees for Hills Bros. are never fooled by an enticing "saddle"—a fetching price or a fancy-looking bean. They are interested in cup-quality only...quality that meets the rigorous tests of long-trained tastes. Is it up to Hills Bros.' standard? Will it produce the rich, delicious, unvarying flavor that users of Hills Bros. Coffee expect? For sixty years these judges have never disappointed the drinkers of Hills Bros. Coffee.

WIND BREAKS OF TREES ARE FENCES

SACRAMENTO. (AP) — Trees could hardly be classed as fences; but the maintenance department of the division of state highways is going to try anyway.

Officials of the division have carried on an investigation of the upkeep of 57,000 feet of snow fences in six counties and have decided that it is considerable.

Six northern counties, Tehama, Shasta, Siskiyou, Modoc, Plumas and Lassen, have proved that something must be done about the huge snow drifts that tax road clearing equipment in their clearing of the highways.

Previously man-made fences of wire and laths have been expensive in their upkeep. Stock, fire and deterioration have taken their toll.

The maintenance department this year has begun the planting of rows of trees which will form shelter belts to act as snow fences.

Naturally, the planting of trees for this purpose cannot be accomplished at every point desired, but survey engineers believe the condition could be improved.

The idea is not new as there are many natural wind breaks in the eastern states. But California's snowfall is in such proportion as to entail considerable expense for movement of traffic in the mountain areas.

Special species of pine and cedar are to be used. The pines are Jeffrey, Coulter, Austrian, Scotch and Stone. The cedars are incense and chamaecyparis Lawsoniana.

Military to Test New Autogiro

LONDON.—Five "jumping" autogiros—the last contribution to rotating-wing aircraft by the late Juan de la Cierva—will be tested this spring by the air ministry, according to present plans. The planes have enclosed cabins and seats for two. They are called "jumping" giros because they can make initial vertical ascents to a height of 30 feet.

IN-LAWS ROW OVER GROVE

Squabbling between two brothers-in-law over title to a 10-acre orange grove rested today after a week of court testimony as Superior Judge G. K. Scovel continued to Monday morning Frank W. Mefford's quiet title suit against Sidney O. Pellew.

Pellew's attorneys have introduced in evidence more than 80 exhibits, including checks, bank records, deeds and wills in an effort to prove title to the ranch, located southeast of Anaheim.

Mefford sued Pellew to quiet title to the property. Pellew, husband of Mefford's deceased sister, alleged in an answer that the property reallly was his, but that he agreed to put the $25,000 ranch in Mefford's name provided Mefford would make a will in favor of the Pellews. Mefford, he charges, had no intention of carrying out the agreement.

F.D.R. GIVEN REPORT ON PRICE STUDY

WASHINGTON. (AP)—An interdepartmental research group presented to President Roosevelt yesterday a report on its study of the price situation.

It was indicated an important statement might be made by the president at his press conference tomorrow morning.

None of the conferees, who came to the White House with voluminous graphs and charts on comparative price levels, would discuss the report which was submitted on behalf of the group by Secretary Morgenthau.

The president last Tuesday told reporters the general price level was still too low and should go up but not too rapidly. He added that the prices of some commodities were too high.

Mr. Roosevelt asserted his aim was still to restore the price level to that of 1926.

Recent labor department statistics had shown that wholesale commodity prices are only about 80 per cent of the 1926 level and about 85 per cent compared with last year.

One conferee when asked whether "something was in the making" replied there was and that it was both important and interesting.

The card game of rummy is said to have originated in Texas.

He Knows How

Only 6 is Peter Lyse, of Bethlehem, Pa., but he travelled to Norway and back trying out the world's best ski fields and by his smile he would indicate that he liked 'em all.

TOWNSEND NEWS, VIEWS

By WALTER R. KOBB

When the Townsendites read this column tonight, their leader, Dr. Francis E. Townsend, will be en route by train to Washington, D. C., where he will surrender himself to the court to serve a 30-day jail sentence with more time added because of the $100 fine recently meted out to him by the United States court of appeals. He left on the Santa Fe train out of Los Angeles at 8:15 o'clock last night and was cheered on his way by a large crowd of Los Angeles Townsendites who were on hand to see him off.

By now the train will be a quarter of the way to Washington over in New Mexico somewhere and tomorrow he will be crossing the wide stretching prairie country of eastern Colorado and western Kansas, arriving in Kansas City tomorrow night. As the doctor passes through the country his mind will be on the plight which now confronts the farmers and working men and business men who reside within the borders of those prairie states. In his heart there will be the cry of a desire to help bring the prosperity so sadly needed by the people of that Mid-West country. Instead of the scarcity being promoted by the Roosevelt administration by production curtailment now in the form of new legislation ready for the President's signature and the resulting regimentation of both farmers and farm labor as will become true, the doctor would create the abundance of the Townsend plan.

The writer of this column was once a farmer himself in the wheat raising section of Kansas and knows the problems of that section of the country. What that country needs is not curtailment of crops but rather the promotion of a market for the wheat, corn, hogs and cattle which are capable of being purchased by the farmers of the middle western states and elsewhere in the nation. What the laboring men of that territory needs is the work and wages which would result from crop production as could become true were the people of the nation vested with a proper purchasing power. And of course when the farmer and the laboring man prospers the problems of business men have been solved, too. The doctor knows, as does the writer, that the Townsend plan enacted into law would accomplish what is so badly needed in the nation.

The Townsendites are awake to the fact that as long as the New Deal is in power there will be strong opposition to the Townsend movement. They are fundamentally opposed to one another in method. The New Deal is a program of scarcity while the Townsend plan is one of abundance. The New Deal promotes higher wages by compulsion of law but the Townsend plan would lift wages to a proper level by placing competition between employers and labor's services because of the prosperity that would abound as result of the Townsend money in circulation.

President Roosevelt promotes the idea of scarcity with its resulting difficulties to the poor because of higher prices, and is lauded by the unthinking as a great humanitarian, while Dr. Francis E. Townsend crusades for a sufficient abundance for all, with a buying power vested with the people adequate to their needs, and he is sent to jail like a criminal.

It would not be strange if while he journeys tonight there was bitterness in the heart of the doctor. Doubtless a measure of it will be resident with him. He would not be human if it were not so. But there will abide in his heart a great peace and a confidence that will transcend the bitterness there. These will be be born of a great conviction that right is might and that out of the jail sentence which he will serve, will come a rallying to the Townsend cause which will eventuate in its being enacted as the law of the land.

THE MOUNTAIN BOYS — By PAUL WEBB

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS — By JOHN HIX

IMMORTAL TREE . . .

Forty-seven years ago a giant redwood in Humboldt County, Calif., came crashing down to earth. Forty-seven years ago many trees came crashing down to earth, but they have long since decayed and vanished. But not so with the giant redwood, for from its prostrate trunk no less than twenty-four trees have grown, some of which are more than a foot in diameter. The tree was between five and six hundred years old when it fell and started sprouting.

And, strange as it seems, none of California's giant Sequoia trees have died a natural death! The sap of these huge trunks is poisonous to insects, and therefore their ravages are eliminated from causes of premature destruction. Only such accidents as lightning or windfalls or similar outbursts of nature can fell a sequoia, with the exception of man.

Sequoias do not die of old age, and, as explained, disease and insect parasites find no footing on them.

"Gosh, I need five bucks and I don't know where to get it."

"I'm glad of that; I was afraid you thought you could get it from me."

Let Freedom Ring Its Loudest

Ex-President Hoover's trip to Belgium, which has the Los Angeles Times emitting such deepfelt cries of worship and adoration, reminds us of a conversation which an American woman newspaper correspondent had recently with the conductor on a Belgian railroad train.

The conductor commented on the fact that, although the German railway guards had lost their freedom under a dictatorship, they always boasted.

"At least I can say what I like," said he. "I can complain about my wages and my government. It is worth a good deal to be free to say that they are rotten.

"It has just occurred to me," the conductor went on, "that that is about all we use our freedom for—to complain . . . These others, they always boast. They boast until they believe what they say. I wonder what would happen if we should blow the horn? Bad as we like to think politicians are, I could blow a blast in favor of my government that would wake up even the Belgians."

There's the hint of a lesson in the conversation for Americans. We, too, use our freedom chiefly to complain. The Belgian conductor's words make us wonder what would happen if we in America should all "blow the horn."

Japanese composer kicks that there are no instruments capable of portraying the sounds that come from modern war. A bugle is still good enough for taps, however.

Work of the Gideons

"Spread My Word throughout the earth."

The Gideon Bible society has now put approximately a million and a half Bibles in hotel rooms throughout the world.

The quiet, non-profit work of the Gideons is an amazing example of the power of sincere faith to achieve a great work.

Beginning back in 1899 with a few traveling salesmen who found rest and comfort after reading a verse or chapter of the Bible while away from home, the organization has spread throughout the civilized world.

Its donations come from individuals who have picked up the Gideon Bible in some hotel room, and have found it has helped them. Their dollars add more Bibles to the constantly growing chain of books.

Gideon readers have found that, whether they accept the Bible wholly, in part, or not at all, its beautiful, flowing English is as fine literature as has ever been written.

Tijuana troops executed that confessed slayer without bothering about a trial. Probably killed him to save him from the mob.

How to Speed the Airmail

The government announces it is seeking ways to speed the airmail.

Here is a practical suggestion, based on the experience of this newspaper.

Airmail, when it is in the air, is rapidly approaching a maximum speed. Where a speed-up may be obtained is in the hours in which the letter is in a mail box, or in the postoffice, or in transit on the ground.

This is particularly true in short distances, because in those cases the hours the mail is on the ground is an increasingly larger factor.

If the postoffice will find some way of speeding airmail during the time it is not in the air, it can cut many hours off the delivery time.

That World Poultry conference in Cleaveland next year may furnish congress with a lot of competition.

Where Do Boats Come From?

One thing always amazes us when flood conditions are pictured in the daily news. No matter how suddenly waters have risen and swirl down Main street, there are plenty of boats at hand to rescue marooned people.

Where do all the boats come from on such short notice?

Not a usable craft in sight before the storm; flotillas of them immediately afterward. How come?

Something like flies at a picnic. Nary a one when the cloth is spread, but hordes of them before the victuals are unpacked.

Japan won't tell her naval secrets. Okeh by Uncle Sam. He knows them anyhow.

The Duke's Wish

The Duke of Windsor, taking notice of a report, denies that he and the Duchess are expecting a blessed event.

The denial got small space in the papers. Another item, also given small space, concerns the girlhood home of Wallis Warfield in Baltimore. The house was opened last year as a museum, admission $1. Then the fee was cut to 50 cents. Then 25 cents. And now the place is closed and for rent.

Well, the Duke has expressed the wish that the public would show less interest in him and his American wife. It looks as if he may be getting his wish.

Maybe one of these days Hitler will wish he'd never quit the paperhanging business.

Heading for War

English, French and Russian delegates to the League of Nations are considering a boycott of Japan, in favor of China.

If they sat down around a table to figure out some way to get another world war started they couldn't hit on any way more effective than this boycott.

FAIR Enough

Old Siwash Venerates Lincoln

By Westbrook Pegler

GALESBURG, Ill. — This is Founders' week at Knox College, fondly known as Old Siwash and as the typical American fresh-water school. They may mean nothing to you, but it is hot stuff at Siwash, and they usually import a couple of speakers to sound off at the big dinner which is the climax of the celebration.

This time they brought in Mr. Emanuel Hertz, of New York, who has authored another book on the apparently inexhaustible subject of Abraham Lincoln. They cannot claim Lincoln as an alumnus, because he never had much book learning—a trait in common which has made many a professional ignoramus in public life swell with homely pride—but they do claim a sort of lien on him, because he once debated with Stephen A. Douglas on the slavery question from a scaffold opening off one of the ground-floor windows of the building known as Old Main.

That was the first time that Lincoln defined slavery as a moral issue, but his address is as well remembered for the fact that when Douglas referred to Lincoln as a man who had once sold whisky the rail-splitter retorted that Douglas, who was something of a rum-pot, had been his best customer. That slew them.

* * *

LINCOLN MEMORIALS

They have a room full of furniture and other articles which Mr. Lincoln is said to have owned or touched or looked at, and although there are few persons now living who can claim to have shaken his hand—and most of them probably are unconscionable old liars—there are others who take solemn pride in claiming to have shaken a hand that shook the hand of the great emancipator. Old Siwash alumni have a way of lowering their voices when they speak of Lincoln.

A shoe which could be credibly or even wishfully certified as having been worn by him would be carefully shellacked or gilded and placed on the mantel shelf in the museum, and even a pluck of lint off his coat would be placed under glass for the edification of the students.

It may be said, however, that the students have a fairly stout edification resistance in this particular. Your correspondent, not knowing, casually asked two little co-eds how came Lincoln and Douglas to be debating before the voters that way in a day when the election of senators was a prerogative of the statesmen of the legislature, including the usual proportion of petty-larceny grafters who would sell a railroad franchise for a second-hand shotgun.

* * *

THEY COULDN'T SAY

They just couldn't say as to that. Neither could an alumnus who pretends to some authority on a subject known by the God-awful laundry-bag name of Lincolniana.

The contrast between Old Siwash, with her conventional, fresh-water ideas and collegiate customs and her old buildings to which tradition clings in lieu of ivy, and the University of Chicago, only two hours but many years away, one way or another, is inescapable but must be resisted. It required a whole series of pieces in the Saturday Evening Post and one of those continued-among-the-leather-belting - ads analyses in Fortune to tell what Robert Hutchins is up to at Chicago.

Whatever it is, he seems to have a big thing there, but the sort of parents who send their young to Siwash or Slippery Rock or Spearfish Normal would regard all that as goings-on. No good can come of picking at the young ones' souls, and experience has proved to generations of Siwash graduates that the way of life is to learn lessons out of books, marry, have children, work, succeed, if possible (and with none of your funny definitions of success) then pass away.

"Pass away," is the term that is generally used.

* * *

EXTERNAL JUVENILE

Mr. Hutchins is plagued by a reputation for precocity. He is 38 years old now, but he has been president of Chicago for 10 years. And, like Willie Hoppe in billiards and Bobby Jones in golf, continues to be thought of as a boy wonder long after his first long pants. He has the stylish grace and poise of a thoroughbred and much resembles in appearance, manner and speech the only stage actor of recent years who has been able to swoon the dolls of whatever age—Mr. Alfred Lunt.

Mr. Carter Davidson, the president of Siwash, on the other hand, is only 33, but a grave young man in a new job and of the type to which life obviously is earnest and real, a meat-and-potatoes educator in a meat-and-potatoes environment. But this is no way to avoid the contrast and must be stopped lest both get sore, if they are not already, and long-word your correspondent to death at the city gate.

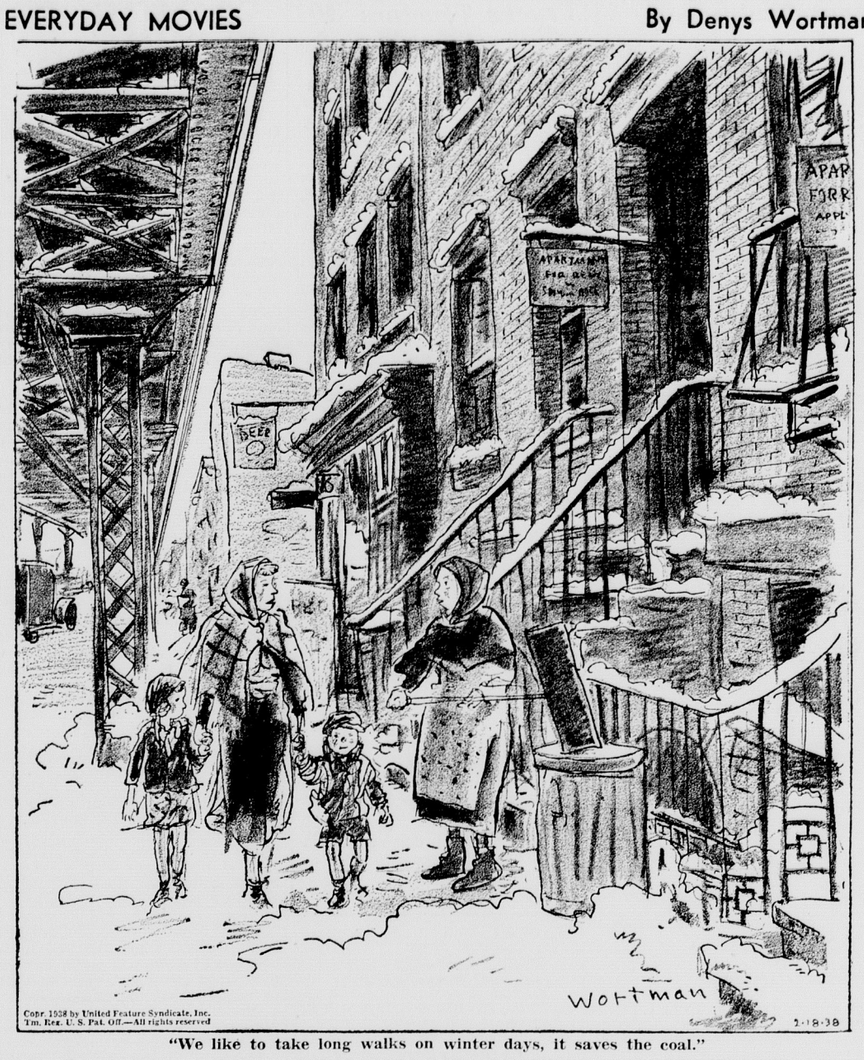

One trait or failing the two schools have in common—their weakness in football.

Siwash, up to a few years ago, had lost twenty-seven consecutive games, and in the last season of that dreary span did not score a point. The quarterback that year broke loose one day, and seemed on his way to a touchdown when he stepped in the water bucket.

Siwash did not regard this as evidence of intellectual superiority. Siwash wants to win. Chicago can imagine nothing of less consequence.

I'll Tell You

By BOB BURNS

One of the most insincere things I've ever seen is the way some of these actresses greet each other when they meet at parties out here. The other night, one of 'em met another one at a party and she says, "Oh, hello, darling — you're looking so wonderful tonight — how are you?" And she walked up and gave the other one a big kiss.

After a while, I took her to one side and I says, "Now, I want'a know why you kissed her like that—I thought you didn't like her."

The actress says, "I certainly don't like her—I hate her."

I says, "Well then, why did you kiss her?" and she says, "Well, don't you see how terrible her freckles show up on her chin where I kissed the powder off?"

Hiram Johnson Now Fighting Naval Commitments Silent in 1932

WASHINGTON. —The fulminations of Hiram Johnson regarding Roosevelt's naval commitments to the British are particularly interesting when compared to the Senator's silence during Henry L. Stimson's dickering with the British in 1932.

Mr. Stimson, secretary of state, under Hoover, did his best to get British naval aid for the United States in blocking the Japanese in Manchuria. Stimson saw the Manchurian invasion as the first Japanese step toward the conquest of all China.

At one time the Japanese fleet sailed for a secret destination in the Pacific, and Stimson went through a hectic period in which serious consideration was given to sending the U. S. fleet to head off the Japanese before they could get to the Philippines.

Stimson went much further with the British than have Hull and Roosevelt, but John Bull at that time was playing secret ball with the Japanese.

* * *

REVERSE ENGLISH

In 1934 the British finally were beginning to anticipate trouble with the Japanese, and when President Roosevelt brought the fleet to New York for review, the British naval attache in Washington approached Admiral Standley, then chief of Naval Operations, to suggest the expediency of leaving part of the American fleet in the Pacific.

"But where," asked Admiral Standley, "was the British fleet when we needed it during the Manchurian troubles two years ago?"

"Young Bob" LaFollette recently took a sly dig at his Democratic colleagues who leave the senate floor to call the White House for advice and instructions.

Ellender of Louisiana was declaiming that the farm bill should require beneficiaries to produce their own food crops before being eligible to receive benefit payments.

Senator George of Georgia got up and denounced the Ellender proposal. He said it would mean more regimentation, that it sounded like one of Stalin's proposals, direct from Moscow.

At this point LaFollette strode out of the chamber. Returning in a few moments, he approached Senator Pope of Idaho and several others. "It's all right about the Ellender idea," he said, "I just called up Stalin, and he said to forget about George and back Ellender. So I guess that settles it."

ARMY VS. NAVY

Insiders close to the Army and Navy report that their rivalry for favorable publicity is prodigious. War Department officials especially are irked at the good breaks the Navy is getting, feel that the President is pro-Navy while Secretary of War Woodring is anti-press.

The matter came up indirectly in a cabinet meeting last week, when Secretary of the Navy Swanson submitted a proposal to take newspapermen on the coming fleet maneuvers. Simultaneously, Acting Secretary of War Johnson had submitted a proposal to take three newspapermen on the six flying fortresses which will help celebrate the Argentine presidential inauguration.

Placing newspapermen aboard battleships during fleet maneuvers was new for the Navy, since during previous maneuvers, bearded Admiral Reeves enforced the strictest censorship, even ordered officers to send ashore their cameras before departure.

So when Secretary Swanson raised the question of putting newspapermen on battleships, the President promptly ruled it out. Then looking toward the Acting Secretary of War, he winked, which was translated as meaning: "That goes for your army bombers, too."

* * *

OUTMUSCLE MUSSOLINI

The flight of the six flying fortresses to Buenos Aires will be one of the most impressive in aviation history. The bombers plan to make only one stop en route to the Argentine capital. This will be at Lima, Peru, and will put them in Argentina in two days, the quickest flight on record.

Strategy behind the flight is to offset Bruno Mussolini's transatlantic flight, neutralize Fascist propaganda, and in general outmuscle Mussolini.

The Federal Trade Commission had been troubled by a prowler who got into the building and committed petty thefts. To detect him, guards were posted at all entrances, including a basement entrance through the furnace room.

In the basement they apprehended not one man but three. Each in turn protested, "But I'm with the Commission," to which the guards replied, "Yes, we've heard the story before."

When they were brought before officials, they proved to be members of the Commission's legal staff, trying to get away before closing hour. If they had gone out the front door, they would have had to sign out, and lose time from their annual leave.

After opening the daily session of the House with prayer, the Reverend James Shera Montgomery walked out of the Capitol with half a dozen grapefruit tucked under his arm, the gift of Texas congressmen . . . What Other Editors Say

JAIL FOR DR. TOWNSEND

It would be an American tragedy to permit Dr. Townsend to serve a prison sentence for contempt of a congressional committee. It would be an affront to personal liberty and national honor. Dr. Townsend is a political prisoner.

Under existing statute, it may be possible that Dr. Townsend is, as the courts have declared, guilty of contempt. If so, we are operating under a shameful statute that has no place in a free commonwealth.

Consider what Dr. Townsend did. He was head of a movement that had large political possibilities. In fact, the movement is about to become a political party of which Dr. Townsend will be the head. An effort was being made by a congressional committee to destroy the strength of a political movement. The investigation was, head and tail, a political investigation.

Dr. Townsend was accused before a political body. His accusers were both his political opponents and his judges. He was damned before he ever entered the committee room.

This statement is not susceptible to proof but every intelligent man knows it to be true. What would any self-respecting man do under the circumstances?

Dr. Townsend did what 99 out of 100 Americans would have done. He walked out.

For an action which should be applauded, he is to be sent to jail, unless executive authority intervenes. He is to become a popular martyr and a cause celebre. He will deserve to be.

Only the most stupid political policy would permit Dr. Townsend to serve his sentence. Every consideration of equity argues for his freedom.—Orange Daily News.

NATURE NOTE

The catholic tastes of deer, are proverbial, especially in captivity, when temptations are more frequent. My Japanese star would invariably chew up his discarded antlers if I did not succeed in discovering them first; I once caught him in the act. I remember, when I was at Oxford in 1895, the deer in Magdalen park used to gather round the ground floor windows of that college to solicit contributions, and we would vie with one another in persuading them to create new gastronomic records in the way of handkerchiefs, cigaret packets, or superannuated ties. But it was generally agreed that the record was definitely broken when one of the stags grabbed and ate a gramophone record.—from a letter in the London Times.

IT'S ODD

But It's Science

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
AP Science Editor

PHILADELPHIA. (AP)—The electric light of the future will change colors at the turn of a switch.

This is one of the tricks of tellurium vapor, now only a laboratory curiosity, described in the Journal of the Franklin Institute.

Tellurium is a non-metallic chemical element, one of the 92 primark substances forming earth, sun and other planets.

It's a cousin of sulphur and often is found in small quantities in gold and silver. It is used for coloring glass and porcelain and for some electrical apparatus.

But J. W. Marden, N. C. Beese and George Meister have developed an electric light by placing a little tellurium in a bulb where it will vaporize when the current is turned on. Tellurium melts at about 1200 degrees Fahrenheit, so that it is easy to produce the vapor.

Through this vapor an electric current will flow just as through a filament making the vapor glow brilliantly.

The peculiarity is that tellurium vapor changes from blue-white to yellow to bright gold as the heat rises with an increase of electric current.

WHIMSIES

DAY BY DAY With O. O. McIntyre

This column is one of the last written by Mr. McIntyre before his death.

NEW YORK.—Thoughts while strolling: Prince Obolensky's last name suggests gulping a fat oyster. Not many industrial giants look as mild mannered as Gerald Swope. Broadway's sprucest press agent: Arthur Levy. They can't scare Doris Duke Cromwell out of flying.

Suggestion for a World's Fair exhibit: Grover Whalen all duded up and under glass. A yester-year stage toast leaving a snack bar at 9 a. m. That's why the lady is etc. With all that smacking around, Al Smith has not lost the geniality that made him so popular.

Busman's holiday stuff: John Perona always dines a half dozen friends nightly in his El Morocco establishment. Every newspaper fellow nurses a secret hope to have Dr. John Finley's health, vigor and ability at his age. And think of DeWolf Hopper's thundering voice at 70!

Memory: The aroma from the livery stable harness room. If you see a little colored fellow with a cocked derby out in the middle of the street talking things over with a policeman, that would be Bill Robinson. Intellectual repast of all ice cream and cake: "Snow White."

New York's octogenarian man-about-town: Col. Creighton Webb. Billy Rose's high-heeled shoes—a part of the Barnum huild-up. Footnote on nostalgia: No place in the night whirl today comparable to the Bustanoby Domino Room. Job I'd like: Skate sharpener for Sonja Henie.

Add vocational oddities: Clarence Straight is a born New Yorker and makes a living imitating animals and birds over the radio and off stage. He has never seen a prairie or been in a forest. He learned how to do all his imitations by loafing about the New York zoos.

No bump of curiosity is more pronounced than that of the so-called sophisticated New Yorker. In one of the better restaurants the other evening he came in escorting something easy on the eye, each in full evening regalia. He wore a thin gauzy pair of snow white gloves, which he did not remove during the meal. Captains were called to a dozen tables around to know the who and the why, and none knew. Probably a temporary skin malady, but whatever it was it put the entire restaurant into a dither.

Dean Cornwell, magazine illustrator and sometimes muralist, is regarded by many artists as having the most classical profile among his guild. The man who drew the stunners on magazine covers so many years, the late Harrison Fisher, was a feminine head-turner wherever he went. And Ben Ali Haggin, who posed the beauts in the Ziegfeld living tableaux, is high up in the Masculine Pulchritude Stakes. And Bradshaw Crandell's no Bull Montana.

I have a revealing letter from a lady-shy gentleman of midale years who tells the why of his aloofness toward the women. Says he: "I studiously avoid women who have 'it.' They tempt me to flirtation; knowing this, I avoid them. All are women who cannot hold a man. But for the moment are stimulating, and in their presence I feel lifted and am at my best mentally. Yet it's a dangerous business. I avoid it as I would a stimulating drug. I had my lesson. Nothing scandalous, but something in a way of a heartbreak for one I most cherish. Never again will I succumb to such a lure."

Every fellow, I suppose, remembers his first flirtation. Not the castings of sheep eyes during adolescence, but around Booth Tarkington's Seventeen period. My rash of coquetry broke out on a local train between McArthur's Junction and Cincinnati, shortly after donning long trousers. A choice number got on at one of the stops and occupied a coach seat in front. After several gallant efforts, I finally cleared my throat to inquire: "Do you mind if I sit there with you?" Midway my voice fluted upward, suggesting a slate pencil drawn through clenched teeth. She sniffed, shifted her position and gazed stonily out the window. And I wandered to the smoker, and almost emptied the water cooler—I was that feverish.

NO PLACE FOR SENTIMENT

"I had to fire an old employe today. I felt sorry—but sentiment has no place in our business."

"What is your business, may I ask?"

"Oh, I manufacture all sorts of holiday and greetings cards."
